Grim Picture in County For Summer Employment

KINGSTON

Ulster County's school-age labor force of more than 20,000 young persons aged 16 to 24 is already flooding the job market and the picture is grim.

Last year the YMCA had 700 applications for 200 jobs for the community's disadvantaged youths and this year hopes to place about 185 young people in jobs.

The scarcity of summer jobs is also taking its toll on a good many college youths who are dependent upon summer earnings for their tuition.

Joseph A. Mahar, manager of the New York State Employment Office in Kingston reports that many summer jobs in this area are resort-related, therefore it is a little early for the placement of young people in them because the resorts will not be in full swing until after the New York City schools close.

He also reports that while in past years his office hired a summer interviewer, the practice is no longer continued because of the unavailability of jobs and the fact that the summer workers seem to be making their own contacts.

Many of the contacts were made some time ago, however. College students home on winter and spring vacations, sensing a tough summer labor market, lined up jobs early. Apparently the early bird technique can pay off. One area college youth, who will be working at a local hospital reports that his college friends so far have been successful in lining up jobs as a filling station attendant, a desk clerk at a local motel, as a laborer in his father's business and as a launderer in the Playboy Club in New York City.

Other students who have held part-time jobs throughout the year are often kept on their jobs with increased hours during the summer, especially at fast-food establishments. While it is good for those youths, it precludes any other students' chances of getting jobs at such restaurants.

McDonald Hamburgers reports that its staff is fairly constant throughout the year and that new persons are only hired as replacements.

Resort jobs which pay $2.10 an hour plus tips have diminished from 3,000 reported in the Catskill area five years ago to 800 last year. Also, the hotels reportedly take about $4.15 a day from the employee for lodging and meals. In addition a job applicant must be able to prove that they have the only for traveling to the hotel and the return home.

All young persons under the age of 18 and seeking jobs must have working papers, applications for which can be secured at local schools. A physical examination is required as is proof of age as is consent of a parent or guardian.

Mahar reports that he has no way of knowing how many jobs are available in the retail market or in offices. Many towns and the city hire youngsters to work in beautification and recreational posts and Kingston's Rent-A-Kid Program which was launched here last year will once again swing into action.

Under the program, any young persons age 14, 15 or 16 who wants to work registers with Rent-A-Kid headquarters at the Kingston Boys Club, 139 Greenkill Avenue.

Teenagers are screened and trained in phases of household jobs such as window washing, babysitting, yard work and housekeeping.

Presently however, there are more job applicants than there are jobs and Rent-A-Kid is looking for more employers.

Ulster County also has its Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY) which is implemented by the YMCA and federally funded.

SPEDY plans three separate programs this summer, the first for youths age 14 to 18 who will earn $2.10 an hour for 25 hours a week for 10 weeks. There are about 30 different job classifications with boys mainly engaged in maintenance and girls in clerical and child care posts. About 100 will be hired.

The second program is for disadvantaged college youths who will work the same number of hours for the same rate of pay. About 45 persons will be placed.

The third group includes high school drop-outs who will work 35 hours a week at $2.10 an hour. About 40 will be hired.

Discouraging as the total picture is considering the large number of jobless compared with available jobs, everyone close to the labor market urges young people to "keep trying ... persistence can pay off."

DA Vogt Probing Town of Ulster 'Irregularities'

By Lynn Mulvaney

TOWN OF ULSTER

Town of Ulster Highway Department records for the past five years have been secured by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt's office which is conducting a preliminary investigation into possible "irregularities" in the highway department.

The investigation was launched during the past few weeks, after allegations were received by the DA's office alleging irregularities concerning the use of highway department equipment, town facilities and highway personnel and merchandise.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino told the Freeman that he and Highway Superintendent Edgar P. Elliott were called into the district attorney's office last week to discuss the matter but Sabino declined to comment further as to what transpired.

Meanwhile Elliott is reportedly planning to make a public statement regarding the investigation and his department's activities on Wednesday.

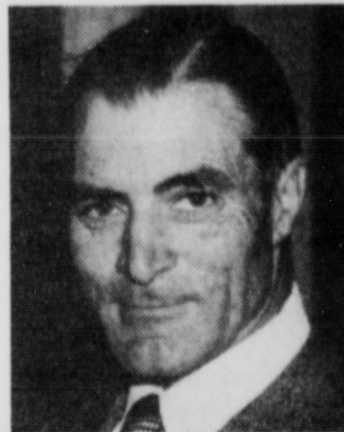

Reacting to reported pressures from Town of Ulster Republicans for both Elliott and Sabino to resign, the supervisor said, "I'm going to stay. If you are innocent, there is no reason to run away from anything."

Sabino revealed that District Attorney Investigator Robert Ferrigan came to the town office last Wednesday to ask for the highway department records for the past five years. Referring to an unnamed complaint, Sabino said he "will defend" his own record. "He has a right to complain and I have a right to defend," he said, adding that he "cannot be responsible" for someone else's actions.

While many Republican officials and committeemen are reportedly "anxiously awaiting resignations", the Freeman learned that if the resignations are not forthcoming, the investigation will be continued and that more than two dozen subpoenas will be issued for the appearance of highway department employees and others close to the situation.

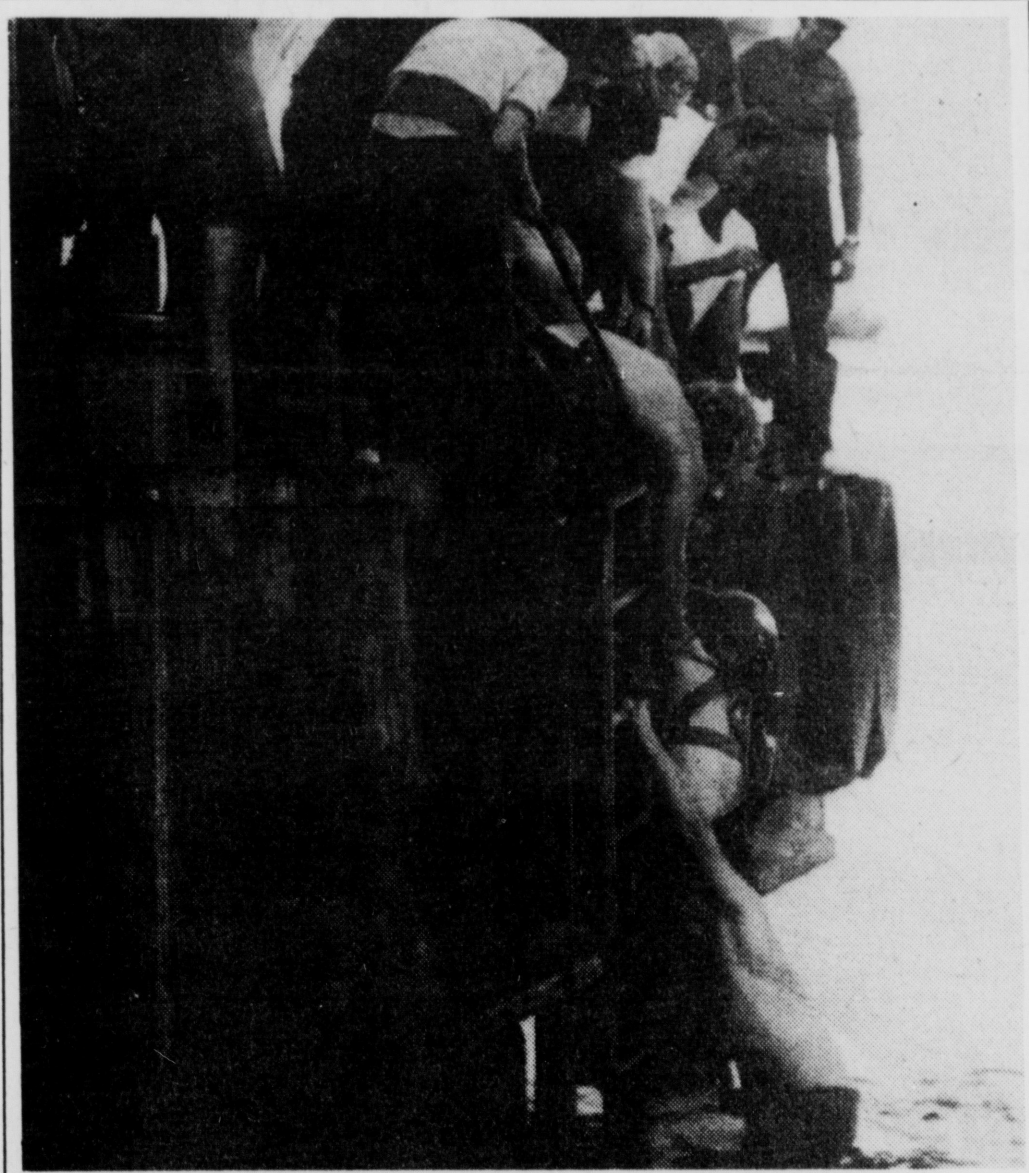

Sabino also told the Freeman that he met with the Town of Ulster Republican Committee last Thursday concerning the investigation. He said "it was news to them" and that they asked to be kept informed.

Ford in Rome for Talks With Italians

ROME (UPI) — President Ford stopped off for talks with Pope Paul and the leaders of NATO partner Italy today enroute home from a European trip his aides called "extremely successful."

Italy's President Giovanni Leone reassured Ford his nation — the anchor of NATO's Mediterranean front — supports a strong and unified Western alliance.

On the flight from Salzburg, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told reporters Ford's European trip yielded rich foreign policy dividends.

"It was an extremely successful trip," Kissinger said. "It gave new sense, vitality and direction to NATO. Uncertainty has been eliminated."

The talks with Sadat were a new step toward peace. Italy's strategic importance within NATO has increased with the political turmoil that clouds the alliance status of NATO's other south-flank nations — Turkey, Greece and Portugal.

The U.S. Sixth Fleet is based in Naples and American warships use various Italian ports frequently.

In his talk with the Pope, Ford was also expected to resume his exploration of Middle East policy with a review of the Roman Catholic church's position on the holy places which have been occupied by Israel since the 1967 war.

Ford's European trip, the first he has made to the continent as President, included a two-day NATO summit meeting in Brussels and a one-day visit to Madrid in addition to the Salzburg meeting with Sadat.

Tonight the President flies to Washington to begin preparing for the next stage in his peace effort, a meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin June 11-12.

Sadat headed for Athens and talks with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis en route home to Cairo.

Ford's meetings with Sadat produced promises of American economic aid for Egypt.

President Ford has grabbed the diplomatic ball in the Mideast. Story on Page 18.

Ford flew to Rome for a 10-hour stopover from Salzburg, Austria, where he held two days of cordial and encouraging talks on Middle East peace prospects with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

The President looked refreshed as he arrived with Mrs. Ford aboard Air Force One, but he seemed to favor the trick knee that caused him to tumble down the airplane ramp in Salzburg. He descended slowly from his plane at Rome's Ciampino Airport and clutched the guidrails with both hands.

Ford flew to Leone's Quirinale palace for talks with the chief of state and Prime Minister Aldo Moro by helicopter — thus avoiding the massive traffic jams caused by security precautions laid on for his visit.

Police blocked off the entire Quirinale Hill — one of the seven hills of Rome — to traffic. Drivers caught up in the resulting jams shouted abuse at police, shook their fists and honked their horns.

At a ceremony in the sunny gardens of the Quirinale, former home of Popes and one of Europe's grandest palaces, Ford saluted the "extraordinary ties of friendship and kinship" which link Italy and the United States.

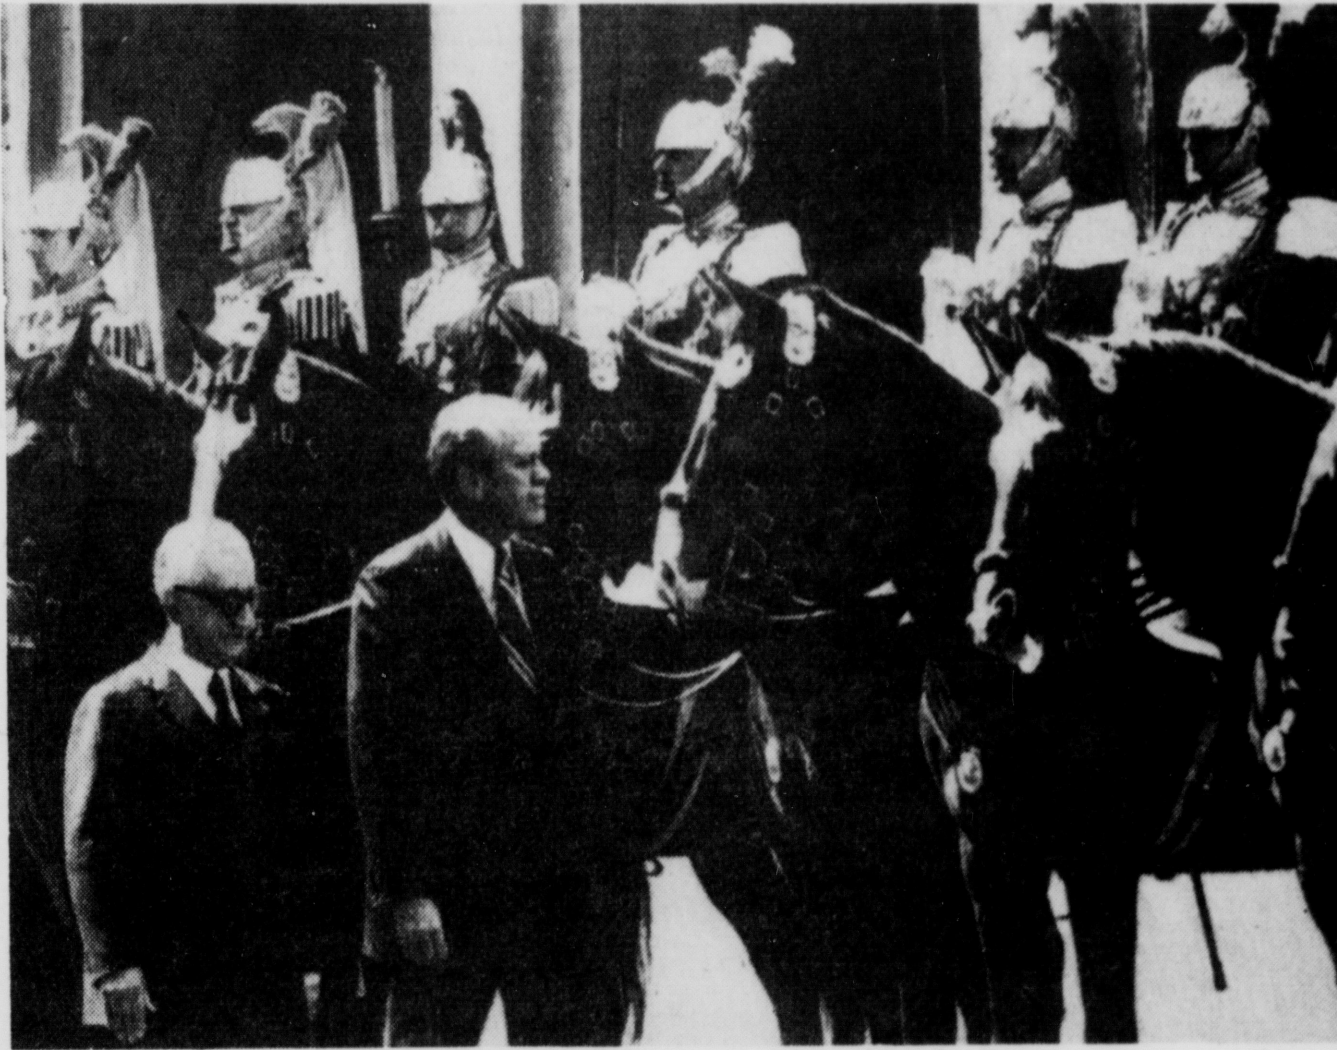

Leone praised Ford for his work in rallying NATO to new unity at the Brussels summit last week.

"The Brussels summit rightly reaffirmed that security for everyone is a vital need for all," Leone said in his greeting to Ford.

"A united and strong Europe would have a role of great importance to play in these essential problems."

False Teeth Lead to Murder Arrest

By Matt Spireng

MARLBORO

The discovery of a set of false teeth allegedly belonging to a Marlboro woman whose badly beaten body was found May 25 near Marlboro led to the arrest Monday night of 35-year-old Gary Hayes, charged with the Memorial Day weekend strangulation murder of Mrs. Hazel Marshall, 61.

The arrest culminated more than a week of around-the-clock investigation by seven police agencies following the discovery of Mrs. Marshall's body in a parking area off Route 9W shortly after midnight May 25.

Hayes, a Baltimore, Md. resident temporarily residing in Gardiner with his mother, was charged with second degree murder on a warrant issued by Esopus Town Justice Robert Jordan.

It was two seemingly unrelated events which happened almost simultaneously—the discovery of Mrs. Marshall's body and an auto accident miles away in the Town of Plattekill—that ultimately resulted in Hayes' arrest Monday at St. Francis Hospital, where Hayes was recovering from relatively minor injuries suffered in the crash.

According to authorities, at about the time Mrs. Marshall's lifeless body was found Hayes, driving alone, was involved in a one-car crash on Route 32 in near Modena. Issued a summons by Plattekill Town Police at the time, Hayes was not arrested and did not go immediately to the hospital.

But Plattekill police noticed a set of false teeth in the car, which were initially thought to belong to Hayes. That information reached state police BCI investigators, and on Monday Supreme Court Justice John L. Larkin signed an exhumation order for the body of Mrs. Marshall—buried last week in Marlboro. A comparison of the false teeth with Mrs. Marshall's mouth by a dental identification expert called in from New York City led to the charges against Hayes, authorities said.

Hayes and Mrs. Marshall, a widow, apparently met in a Poughkeepsie bar on the night of May 24 and left together before midnight, according to authorities. They had not apparently known each other previously.

Hayes, who police said admitted himself to the hospital several days after the auto accident which occurred as he was apparently fleeing the murder scene, was being held under heavy guard today at the hospital pending his arraignment before Jordan.

First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh said the investigation leading to the arrest had been "particularly difficult" and was successfully culminated only through the close cooperation of the state police at Highland and Kingston, Plattekill and Marlborough Town Police, the City and Town of Poughkeepsie Police, Baltimore, Md., City Police and Connecticut State Police.

No motive for the murder has yet been uncovered, Kavanagh told the Freeman.

Some Doctors in Area Cutting Back Services

KINGSTON

Some Ulster County physicians began cutting back services such as elective surgery Monday in what appears to be a gradual slowdown pending the outcome of the malpractice insurance crisis. Divergent feelings among the county's 120 practicing doctors seem to be surfacing as the July 1 date for cutoff of their malpractice contracts with the Argonaut Insurance Company draws near.

The Ulster County Medical Society members meet tonight to air individual views and perhaps take an individual or collective posture as to their future course of action.

During the past week a number of physicians declared that as of June 1 they would not agree to any more elective surgery or elective hospitalization for their patients. Others stated that as of the middle of this month they would only take on cases which would not require hospitalization beyond June 30.

Two surgeons, Dr. Howard B. Mass and orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Charles Galyon advertised their positions in the Freeman with Dr. Mass saying that "effective June 30, if the current malpractice insurance problem is unresolved I may not be able to provide you with medical care and treatment."

Dr. Galyon said that "... effective June 30, if the current malpractice insurance problem is unresolved I will not be able to provide you with medical care and treatment.

Less definite is Anesthesia Associates of Kingston, a group of anesthesiologists at Kingston Hospital, who announced that if the crisis is not resolved before July 1, they "May not be able to provide anesthesia coverage from that date."

Boards and administrators of Kingston and Benedictine hospitals have been meeting with physicians on their respective staffs and Kingston Hospital Administrator Anthony R. Triulzi indicated that there will be doctors who "will cover on a voluntary basis." He said the emergency room would be running "full tilt" but that other services might have to be cut back.

Benedictine Hospital Assistant Administrator Gerald H. Nocton said that many staff physicians at Benedictine have said they would sign up with whatever insurance is available by July and that they have resolved that they will have to pay higher premiums in order to carry on their work.

The hospital has conceived detailed emergency plans however, if a partial shutdown occurs.

Benedictine's chairman of the anesthesiology department, Dr. Mansoor Hakim, said he would be available for semi-emergency and emergency cases. He said he doesn't want to see the hospital suffer. He does however anticipate a definite slowdown in surgery by the middle of the month.

May Tax Religiously Owned Land

ALBANY — A bill that would allow assessors across the state to re-examine over $8 billion worth of tax exempt property has unanimously passed the assembly, sponsored by Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.).

"This bill would lift an unfair burden from the shoulders of average Ulster County taxpayers who are subsidizing the inappropriate use of certain land owned by religious and other non-profit organizations," said Hinchey. "It is an abuse of all the other residents of a community as well as an abuse of the separation of church and state concept when a religious organization extends its tax exempt status to lands used for camps and bungalow colonies."

Hinchey added, "The total of fully tax-exempt land in Ulster County is $53,611,111. An example of the kind of organization I'm concerned about is the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society which owns about $12,015,000 of tax exempt property in the towns of Gardiner and Shawangunk. The Ulster County Real Property Tax Agency records show that of three parcels of land in Shawangunk 400 acres are occupied by buildings and residences and 591 acres are in field crops. It is this kind of use that I feel is improper."

"I feel that to tax all religiously owned property would be incorrect. But I feel, as does the assembly's Real Property Tax Committee, that something has to be done to end this abuse," Hinchey said.

"What this law will do is redefine the use of the word exclusively in the law so that land that is not used primarily for the purposes for which the exemption was granted may be taxable. This would be up to the discretion of the assessor. Also where the physical aspects of the property are such that the assessors cannot specifically separate the taxable portion that which is properly exempt, the assessor may prorate from the assessment by a reasonable method," Hinchey said.

The bill passed 147 to 0.

Sloop Test Shows Disaster Possible

POUGHKEEPSIE

A report released by the Hudson River Sloop Restoration contends that pertinent state agencies would have been unable to provide necessary community safeguards on May 21 had a major radiological accident occurred at the Indian Point atomic power facility near Peekskill.

John Harris-Cronin, a member of the group's environmental staff, conducted his own test of the "New York State Emergency Plan for Major Radiation Accidents Involving Nuclear Facilities" on May 21. In his report, Harris-Cronin concludes that the necessary safeguards to protect nearby residents in the event of a radiation accident were inoperative on that date.

The first step, in Harris-Cronin's investigation on May 21 involved a telephone call to the Nuclear Facility Operator at the Indian Point plant in Buchanan. The operator was asked what key state personnel he would contact in the event of a major nuclear accident at the plant.

According to Harris-Cronin, the operator "showed no awareness of the official emergency plan, claimed that notifying state officials was not his job and said he would inform his 'contacts at Con Ed'."

Under the state's published emergency plan, said Harris-Cronin, the operator's prime obligation "would have been to immediately call the State Police Warning Point in Albany."

The operator's apparent unawareness of his responsibilities under the emergency plan, added Harris-Cronin, "could have effectively obstructed the entire emergency plan, possibly imperiling the whole Buchanan-Peekskill community."

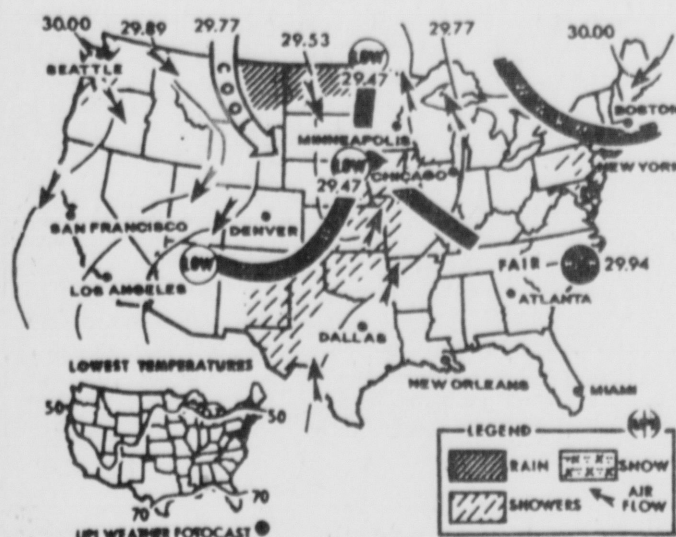

Harris-Cronin then telephoned the State Warning Point, where the sergeant on duty reportedly told him that he would respond to a report of a radiation accident by calling Civil Defense Directors, and then awaiting their instruction. But according to the Sloop member, the state's emergency plan requires the official to contact the Bureau of Radiological Health while maintaining continuous contact with the Nuclear Facility Operator.

One key figure in the emergency plan, noted Harris-Cronin, is the Public Information Officer, who is responsible for requesting local radio and television stations in the area of the nuclear facility to issue prompt advice to the public. Harris-Cronin contacted John Maguire, who is listed as the Public Information Officer in the emergency plan, but who reportedly denied any knowledge that he was responsible for the duties outlined in the emergency plan. In fact, said Harris-Cronin, Maguire told him that he had never even heard of the term "Public Information Officer."

According to Harris-Cronin's report, "The tragedy of errors that could have taken place on the night of May 21 has been aptly illustrated. In the event of a major radiation accident, time is of the essence. It cannot be wasted on supposition, speculation or procedural mistakes. The emergency plan is a worthless document if it contains erroneous, out-of-date information, if it cannot be located in an emergency or if key officials are unfamiliar with its procedures. These have all been the case in this investigation."

Proposal by Carey Would Give Borrowing Power to New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey has proposed setting up a state corporation aimed primarily at injecting some borrowing power into financially strapped New York City, while opening the door to other cities.

Carey avoided detailing the specifics of the plan Monday. However, UPI has learned there will be two phases to the legislation — one dealing with the state in general and one with New York City in particular.

The immediate goal of the proposal, in effect, would be to use the state's credit rating in obtaining money for New York City, which faces nearly $800 million in debts due on June 11.

It will be presented to the legislature by Wednesday "for action hopefully sometime this week," Carey said. Legislative leaders indicated a willingness to support the concept.

The governor said the proposal generally calls for creation of a municipal assistance corporation to sell bonds and issue loans. He said the agency would be supported by a "stream of revenues," in part a possible reference to efforts of a four-man team in Washington today to talk with federal officials.

Legislative sources said that under the plan, local governments would have to approve participation and then seek approval from the state legislature.

New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame, facing a $641 million budget gap, has been frustrated in his attempts to borrow money directly either from the state or federal government. As a result, the city will eliminate more than 37,000 jobs by July 1.

"The plan will help New York City to provide essential services and create investor confidence in the city's financial offering," Carey said. He added that failure to resolve the problem "will result in a further adverse impact on the credit of the state and increase the burden on all taxpayers."

One thorny aspect of the Carey plan rests on the fact that such loans would allow the corporation to have a voice in the city's budgetary decisions. New York City would be required to revamp some of its accounting procedures in order to create "a uniform standard," Carey said.

Carey said a part of the approach "may involve" the federal government, but declined to elaborate. He said a four-man delegation was sent to Washington to outline the proposal to Treasury Department officials.

He predicted that the corporation would save the city as much as $200 to $400 million in debt service, the money paid back on money borrowed.

The city, because of its unstable fiscal picture, has been charged more than 9 per cent interest for its bonds. The state, meanwhile, has issued bonds requiring less than 6 per cent interest to be paid.

Most of the state's large cities are faced with fiscal troubles. In Buffalo, for example, the common council passed a budget which will require laying off some city firemen, although the exact number is undecided.

20 Hours Under the Ocean

GRAND ISLE, La. (UPI) — Five crewmen trapped underwater in a capsized ocean oil rig survived for 20 hours by keeping their heads in small air pockets, praying, and pounding on the walls until divers reached them Monday.

But a sixth man is still missing. Coast Guard officials said today he was not believed trapped in the submerged rig and divers will not keep searching the derrick for him.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the last man was believed tossed overboard when the barge-mounted structure capsized 18 miles offshore in the Gulf of Mexico Sunday.

"I was just plain old scared," said Darrel John Dore of Delcambre, La., the first man rescued Monday. "I thought of my wife a lot — and I prayed."

Dore said he found a small air pocket after the rig sank in the water, and began beating on the wall of the rig with a knife to let divers know where to find him. But he said one diver passed nearby three times without stopping.

"I prayed a whole lot, I guarantee you," Dore said.

He had three feet of breathing space when divers reached him. Dore spent two hours in a decompression chamber and was in good condition, complaining only of neck and back pains because of the way he had to position himself while trapped.

The other four men were placed in decompression chambers and taken to Grand Isle to await examination by Dr. Sterling Dunn of New Orleans, a specialist in decompression and underwater medicine.

The rig carried a crew of 12 men. Six were rescued on the ocean surface right after the accident. The five men trapped were asleep in their quarters when the rig flipped. Coast Guard Petty Officer James Henry said the last man missing was above deck at the time.

"Indications are he was swept overboard," Henry said. "The interior of the rig has been thoroughly searched."

Calm weather favored the rescue operations.

Henry said the Coast Guard rescue team was jubilant that 11 of the 12 crewmen were rescued, "but I bet we're not half as happy as those men who were rescued."

No Verdict Yet

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The jury Monday failed to reach a verdict in the trial of two reputed Symphonies Liberation Army "soldiers" charged with the cyanide-bullet murder of Oakland School Superintendent Marcus Foster.

Deliberating for the fourth day on a 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. schedule, the eight-woman, four-man panel, continued to review evidence from the nine-week case. There was no indication how close to a verdict it might be.

The jury is deliberating the fate of Joseph Remiro, 28, and Russell Little, 25, who are accused of the November 1973 assassination of the popular black educator and the attempted murder of his deputy, Robert Blackburn.

Critically wounded by a shotgun blast during the nighttime ambush, Blackburn recovered and is now acting superintendent.

The all-white jury is sequestered and spends the night at a motel next to the historic old governor's mansion near the downtown area.

The eight-woman, four-man jury spent the weekend weighing the evidence but gave no indication how close a verdict might be. They emerged from their closed-door deliberations only once to rehear several key portions of the nine weeks of testimony.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 3, 1975

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Despite promises of reform, the TV networks still play up violence on children's shows.

Researchers studying the Saturday morning fare clocked an act of aggression "every 3 and one half minutes of actual program time on the commercial networks."

The worst offender was NBC, which produced 46 percent of the violence. ABC had 30 percent, CBS 24 percent.

The mayhem subsided only long enough for the networks to sell the usual toys and tooth rot. The commercial sought to stimulate a desire in the kiddies for candy, pastries and pop.

"Children completely lacked exposure to . . . the most natural and wholesome foods," the researchers declare in a confidential study. "There were no advertisements for fruits, vegetables or dairy products."

For years, we have crusaded against TV violence, which

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dialing In For TV Mayhem

many sociologists believe has helped spread lawlessness in America. Again and again, we have shown how youngsters imitate the TV feats of Evel Knievel or Bonnie and Clyde.

More than a year ago, we cited a Federal Communications Commission report which urged reform of children's TV. The new chairman, Richard Wiley, assured us that reform was "on the front burner."

But Wiley's promises, according to the confidential survey, haven't done much to curb TV violence.

The study was conducted by the Media Action Research Center, with church and foundation backing. The center found from a careful review of the TV offerings on two successive Saturday mornings that fistfights, robberies and other hostile acts were endemic on commercial television.

The shows with the most aggression, averaging a hostile act every minute on one Saturday, were "Bugs Bunny," "Pink Panther," "Speedy Buggy," and "Wheelie and the Chopper Bunch."

At the same time, the survey found "positive social behavior" on children's television. But the incidents of "sharing, helping and cooperation," although frequent enough, seldom offset the aggressive acts.

On the positive side, the report cites the TV show, "Devlin," as an "outstanding program." Throughout half the show, the researchers recorded "no aggression, 10.33 acts of altruism, and 9.67 acts of sympathy explaining feelings."

Concludes the study: "It is possible to produce appealing nonviolent shows for children, given the desire and conscientiousness to do so."

Footnote: the National Association of Broadcasters, which is holding a children's program conference in Washington this week, defended the networks. A spokesman said the networks, particularly ABC, have made "great strides in calming down the Saturday (programs)." He also contended that children are able to distinguish between cartoons and real life. Children understand that cartoons figures are fantasies, he said.

AZORES ALTERNATIVE: If Portugal blocks the United States from using the Azores as a staging base to supply Israel, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has revealed, the United States is ready with "alternative possibilities."

He didn't elaborate.

We can report, however, that the Air Force has spent the past six months training crews to refuel giant C-5 cargo planes in mid-air. The crews are now ready.

They have taken C-5s on dramatic test flights halfway around the world — fully loaded, non-stop, with mid-air refueling. Some of the flying behemoths were flown from the West Coast to Iran, others from the East Coast to the Philippines.

In case Israel should need emergency supplies, the C-5s would be sent right down the middle of the Mediterranean over international waters.

MARTIN'S SECLUSION: The embattled former U.S. ambassador to Saigon, Graham Martin, has quietly dropped out of sight. He never made it back to the United States but stopped in Rome, where he has gone into seclusion.

During the last days of the Saigon regime, we published a succession of stories charging that he had misjudged the crisis and had mishandled the evacuation. But he has not come home to face the charges.

Members of Congress, eager to question Martin, have submitted inquiries to the State Department. These have been relayed to the U.S. embassy in Rome, but he hasn't responded — at least not by official cable.

The State Department has made no effort to communicate with him, our sources say, because "there is no subject anybody wants to talk about."

FRIENDSHIP FILE: The huge Chase Manhattan Bank has been keeping a file since 1969 on the relationships between its executives and government officials in a position to help the bank.

The bank sent executives a confidential letter seeking personal information about their friendship with "officials in the legislative and executive branches of government."

A spokesman explained that the purpose was to "get more people in the bank involved in public policy matters."

Summer Jobs

The scarcity of summer employment for area students is just another indicator of a sick economy that hopefully will start on the road to recovery, according to the experts, sometime during the fall.

But that in no way is going to help the kids this season. In previous years, many students worked at summer jobs helping to defray upcoming tuition costs. Summer employment, too, taught a practical lesson. In taking the student out of the classroom for a two-month period and immersing him in the economic mainstream, the valuable lessons that all is not wine and roses, or theory and idealism, were taught. This aspect in the lack of jobs this year is perhaps even more important than the loss of supplemental income. We urge anyone whose business calls for it to make a determined effort to give a student a job.

Scott's Choice

Sen. Hugh Scott neatly placed the kiss of death on the cheek of a friend the other day. The doughty Republican warrior opined in public that the Democrats have one good presidential candidate, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. It seems fair to say that this is not precisely the kind of support Humphrey needs in his studied (maybe the lightning will strike again) non-bid for the nomination.

The circumstances attending Scott's remark are of interest. He and nine other GOP senators up for reelection next year had just been seeing President Ford to discuss their prospects, and his. Upon emerging, Senator Scott left no doubt that vigorous politicking is in store.

Expressing the view that Mr. Ford would face no substantial challenge within the party, he further cast scorn upon putative White House rivals. "With few exceptions," he opined, "the present Democratic candidates are a parade of pygmies." He then proceeded to elaborate on the theme.

"You have some flip-flop candidates," said the Senate Republican leader, "you have some reluctant candidates, and you have candidates who pussyfoot and retreat." All things considered, a mixed bag of small potatoes. With, however, one exception, the man from Minnesota and erstwhile presidential candidate.

Humphrey, said his colleague, "is very able and conscientious but they probably won't nominate him." Probably not—especially with such a warm and friendly endorsement from the wrong side of the aisle.

Sitting in

By William F. Buckley

The President's designation of Daniel Patrick Moynihan to succeed John Scali as our Ambassador to the United Nations has aroused opposition from a curious quarter. Henry Fairlie is an Englishman who lives in the United States and every now and again writes impressively from a position roughly identified as "conservative." For instance, back when everyone with a moral I.Q. of more than 100 was assumed to be totally opposed to our resistance to aggression in Vietnam, Mr. Fairlie was saying reassuring things about how he slept better at night for the knowledge that America's military industrial complex was steadfastly engaged in the business of containment.

But like many other English conservatives, Mr. Fairlie is a thoroughgoing eccentric, and is capable of writing prose so ponderous as to require a pick and shovel to blast down to its meaning. I have made the exertion, and Mr. Fairlie seems to be saying that Moynihan, though a charming gentleman, is no good for us in the United Nations because said Moynihan does not sufficiently appreciate "liberalism," the "tradition" of "American decency."

Far from having reached the dead end that Moynihan says liberalism has reached, it is in the opinion of Mr. Fairlie, writing in the Washington Post, up and going. Indeed, "what is surprising in this respect is the resilience and vitalidity that liberalism has continued to exhibit." Mr. Moynihan, says Fairlie in a neat venture in parellepsis, having rejected his own tradition causes concern because of "— one hesitates to say his malice, because he is not a malicious man — the ill-temper . . . with which Mr. Moynihan repudiates a large part of his own past." Fairlie speaks of Moynihan's "lack of generosity," and suggests that he be subjected to "a period of benign neglect" — so that Moynihan's "friends could then enjoy him more in the evenings."

I know both Mr. Moynihan and Mr. Fairlie, and I know Mr. Moynihan, to be the most generous of men, though I would be surprised if that generosity extended to his con-

On the Right

The Attacks on Patrick Moynihan

ting to spend an evening with Mr. Fairlie.

What's going on, folks? The boys are afraid of him. They are afraid because Mr. Moynihan, for all that this conservative shrinks with horror at a domestic order patterned after the ADA liberalism with which Mr. Moynihan is 'explicitly associated, has what I once labeled as the lowest level of crap-tolerance in the United States. People like Henry Fairlie have no objection to the United Nations provided they never hear about it.

Mostly, one doesn't hear about the United Nations, and that is the organization's outstanding virtue: its irrelevance. But one always tends to hear about places that shelter Daniel Patrick Moynihan. Not at all because he is an exhibitionist — in India, where Fairlie attempted to depict Moynihan as a bloated viceroys who paraded around sitting on elephants and sipping tea and making a general nuisance of himself — Moynihan gave a total of two press conferences and made two speeches in two years. But Mr. Moynihan learned a great deal about India, and we are beginning to benefit from his insights, as witness his recent article in Harpers.

Fairlie writes about Moynihan and the U.N.: "He would not be able to stay silent; he would not sit still. He would rise every morning to prepare an oration against a nation as harmless as Dahomey. He would practice a new form of gunboat diplomacy, his words his guns. Every morning we would open our newspaper to read that Mr. Moynihan has engaged in a duel with Liberia . . ."

Now Mr. Moynihan has, in fact, already served in the United Nations — as a member of the public delegation four years ago. He did rise on one splendid occasion: not to engage Dahomey or Liberia, but the Soviet Union, a representative of which had airily remarked that unlike the situation in the United States, in the Soviet Union there are no labor union problems. If Moynihan hadn't been around, the Soviet delegate would have gotten away with it — a statement as raw as a Nazi delegate's commenting that in Germany there was no Jewish problem.

It is instructive to note the implied condemnation in Mr. Fairlie's attack on Moynihan. What he is really saying is that nothing done by Dahomey or Liberia is worth the imperial attention of the United States. But the General Assembly is not so constituted. The vote of Dahomey is equal to the vote of the United States in that chamber, even as the vote of Rhode Island is equal to that of New York in the Senate of the United States. When Mr. Dahomey speaks, Ambassador Moynihan will listen to what he says; and will treat him with the respect of a reply, if one is warranted. That is the genuine respect for which the General Assembly secretly yearns.

Berry's World

"Who'd have thought, ten years ago, we'd be sitting here today griping about the breakdown of services!"

Nicholas Von Hoffman: Shopping the Co-Op Food Way

BOSTON — Eggs 54 cents a dozen! American cheese 83 cents a lb.! Iceberg lettuce 16 cents a head! Romaine 34 cents a head! A 32-oz bottle of Heinz catsup 86 cents!

These aren't prices taken from a 16-year-old newspaper advertisement. A person can actually buy these commodities at these prices today at the Boston Food Co-op. There is a catch, though. You must be a member, and to be a member you must contribute two hours a month of work. They're not fooling about that, either. Before you can enter the Co-op's store area you must show your ID to a volunteer at the desk who then looks you up in the card file to see if you're in arrears on your work.

The Co-op claims 3,000 members in the more-or-less active category, but even so there are problems as some of the signs on the walls attest: "We have $1,500 in outstanding BOUNCED checks." Nevertheless, the Boston Food Co-op is one of the pleasantest places you'll ever shop. You'll get a chance to clap eyes on your butcher. Outside of those TV ads for things like Shake 'N Bake, when was the last time you saw a butcher cutting up a piece of meat? Not an assembly line butcher behind plate glass slapping the lamb chops on to plastic trays and sealing them with transparent DuPont, but a butcher you can touch?

Granted the Co-op's butcher is a volunteer, but (s)he is real enough to swap gossip and recipes with. And the middle-aged woman at the checkout counter apologizes for being slow because she's never operated a cash register before. Lord, what a pleasure to give your money to someone who doesn't hate you, hate the food, hate the job and hate the company. Didn't you read somewhere that marketing used to be a social occasion, or was that something you remembered from the time you went to Paris and got depressed when the Frenchman told you that some day La Belle France would catch up and there'd be nothing but modern supermarkets.

This is not the first time that co-ops have enjoyed a vogue. They were big in the 1930s for much the same reasons they are now: recession, revulsion at the marketing practices of the iants and despair over the depersonalized commerce which leaves you no one to identify with but that icky, white-faced Pillsbury doughboy.

The wars, McCarthyism (the Joe kind), and the long period when we were willing to let real estate developers and corporate managers organize our social lives for us seem to have turned people away from co-op enterprises. The most successful co-ops took on at least some of the tone though not the greed of their competitors. Professional managers ran them, annual meetings of the cooperators or members more nearly resembled stockholders meetings than people joined in a common, happy undertaking. The fun had gone out of them and the price differentials weren't that big, although the large, gleamy co-ops always gave a shopper better value for the money and never abandoned such important secondary services as nutritional information.

The new co-ops, started in the last five years or so, have a bounce that the older, institutionalized ones lack. The names of many reflect hopes and values that are larger than strict utilitarianism. Here in Massachusetts you can find Our Daily Bread Co-op, The Community Stomach Natural Food Co-op and the Peace and Beans Co-op. Maine has co-ops named Allied Stomach, Rising Sun, Goat, Promised Land, Fog Horn, Now Now and the Hungry Chunks Inevitable Food Co-op.

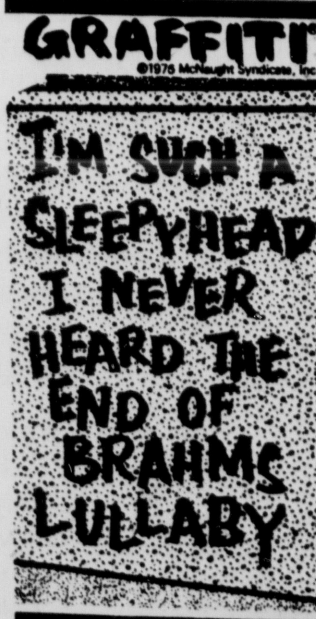

Co-ops are coming up like beanstalks all over the country. You've got the Wild Bill's Walk on Water Bakery Co-op in Kalamazoo and the Wolf Moon Bakery in Lansing, Michigan. Bread and Justice in Minneapolis, and, don't you like it, The Safer Way Co-op in El Ay. Also in California are to be found the Rose Hips Buying Club, Loaves and Dishes, Mr. Natural's and Ma Revolution's co-ops. (For as complete a directory as this chaotic movement is capable and of other kinds of info on food co-ops, you can subscribe to Food Co-op Nooz, Food Co-op Project, Loop College, 64 E. Lake St., Chicago, Ill. 60601 for $3.)

In the Boston Co-op they say they argue over where the soda pop display should be put. One member says that he has noted its slow march to the rear and off to one side. A small matter but very satisfying for those of us who resent everything being stacked out and placed in accordance with values we don't share. How good it must feel to market in a store that will permit you to put a sign over some especially obnoxious and poisonous product which warns the next customer: "Don't buy this crap. It'll kill ya."

The food co-op may afford us the only road leading back toward the real tomato. The degradation of the quality of our food has been slow enough to allow the chain stores and the manufacturers and extruders of near-food to educate our palates and our stomachs to want or at least not to regurgitate industrial substitutes, but the tomato is a different story. It left us so quickly. It's just in the last few years that they've changed a once noble, tasty and nutritious vegetable into a color additive in our salads.

The co-op movement may give us the purchasing power to buy back the tomato. That may not fill us with the expansive sense of accomplishment that would peace or pure air would, but it certainly beats sitting around watching Jerry Ford tear off the calendar leaves while he reads us Harry Truman's old speeches.

Amtrack Fares Rise

CHICAGO (UPI) — Firstclass accommodations on all passenger trains between Chicago and the West Coast will cost 10 percent more beginning July 1, Amtrack officials said Monday.

Amtrack also announced increases in both coach and first-class fares for trains operating in the Northeast Corridor between Washington and Boston.

Amtrack President Paul H. Reistrup said the fare increases were necessary to cover a 6.9 percent rise in wages this year, a 17.2 percent jump in fuel costs and a 15.5 percent jump in the cost of materials.

He said travelers with reservations on affected trains will pay the old fares even if they don't make their trips before July 1. Tickets on unreserved trains sold before July 1 also will be honored after July 1.

Public Meeting Scheduled

TOWN OF KINGSTON — The Kingston Town Board will hold a public informational meeting in the town hall at 8 p.m. on Thursday, June 26, to discuss building a new combination tennis court and skating rink at the town recreation area adjacent to the town hall.

Supervisor Kenneth Whispell and board members asked town residents to attend the meeting and make their feelings known to aid the board in reaching a decision. If the decision is to go ahead, the present basketball court on the site would be demolished to make room for the new facility.

Long Struggle Finished, Saugerties Has a Budget

By Carl Graham

SAUGERTIES
The Village of Saugerties—two days into the new fiscal year—finally has a 1975-76 budget.

The village board Monday night adopted a $576,169 budget, up from last year's $478,682. Despite the sizeable budget increase, a sharp rise in anticipated revenues kept the amount to be raised by taxes from increasing proportionately and translates into a $37 per thousand tax rate, up only 13 cents from the current figure.

The only dissenting vote came from Trustee Erika Hinchey. Mrs. Hinchey left before the meeting ended due to illness and could not be reached for comment on her negative vote.

Adoption of the budget ended two months of hard work for Mayor James Gage and the board that took over on April 7. Unable to meet state-mandated deadlines for a public hearing (April 15) and enactment of a budget (April 20) they were given state permission to get a budget "as soon as possible."

The new administration also had to borrow $15,000 from the village water fund and $45,000 in tax anticipation notes to meet payrolls for the year ending May 31. Gage attributed the $60,000 deficit to "under-budgeting and over-spending" on the part of the previous administration.

On the advice of William Brinnier, village attorney, the board voted to have village employees raze the Tracey property on Jane Street. Brinnier said the owner had signed an agreement to have village crews do the work on the building, damaged twice by fire since last fall, and noted that the alternative was to incur from $750 to $1,000 in legal fees to force the owner to do

School Budget Voting

ALBANY

For the first time, voters in cities such as Oneonta and Kingston would have the opportunity to approve or disapprove their school budgets, under legislation sponsored by State Sen. Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.).

The Mason bill proposes that qualified voters in city school districts under 125,000 population be granted the power of budget approval, which under present law rests solely with city boards of education.

Noting that he had submitted the legislation in response to "numerous complaints from constituents who feel their voice is being denied," Mason declared, "More than ever, the public is calling for efficient, businesslike methods on the part of school boards and administrators. Hard-pressed taxpayers, struggling to support their families and make both ends meet, are insisting on increased economy and accountability."

"After all, it's their money, they're entitled to full value for every tax dollar school districts spend," Mason continued. "If taxpayers feel they're not getting their money's worth, and a quality education for their children, then they should have more of a say on adoption of school budgets."

the work.

The board adopted Trustee Charles Steele's resolution to give all village employees not covered by bargaining contracts 12 paid holidays a year, with employees who have to work receiving time and one-half pay. A second Steele resolution calls for all salaried employees except the village attorney to receive 52 paychecks based on regular annual salaries, with no additional pay for overtime hours worked.

The board set two public hearings to precede its July 7 meeting. The first is to consider a recommendation from the plumbing board to rescind a section of the village code permitting outside plumbers to work inside the village by paying a fee and obtaining a special permit. Gage noted that no other municipality in the area extends similar privileges to Saugerties plumbers.

The second hearing will consider a request from Vidi-Com of Saugerties to increase its monthly cable television fee from $5.95 to $6.95. The firm proposes to leave installation charges unchanged but is asking higher fees for reconnections, temporary disconnections, and relocations.

The board failed to act on a request from the Saugerties Jaycees for permission to hold a parade July 4 over the same route used last year. Gage asked Jaycee officials to meet with the fire and police commissioners to discuss traffic control and other problems.

In other action, the board: • Voted to visit Myers Lane Sunday morning to investigate a complaint from Edward Whitaker that surface water is entering his garage and cellar.

• Heard Joseph Martin, parks and playgrounds commissioner, set Saturday, June 14, for the opening of the municipal beach and all parks and playgrounds.

• Heard Richard Underhill, fire commissioner, report that firemen would hold a field day Sunday involving several outside companies, and that firemen would be using hydrants in the Market Street-Robinson Street area. The public is invited.

Penney's Gives to Schools America's Musical Past

KINGSTON
Glen Stampfle, general manager of the J. C. Penney Store on Wall Street, presented the firm's "Bicentennial Musical Celebration" package of 100 minutes of sheet music to five area acholastic music directors in the garden of the Senate House on Monday morning.

Recipients included David Keehn of Saugerties Central Schools, J. Brian Steeves of Kingston High School, Paul N. Steiner of New Paltz Central Schools, Mrs. Harry Simon of Onteora Central Schools, Murray Van Ness of Red Hook Central Schools and Jerry Conklin of Hyde Park Central Schools.

Stampfle, also president of the Kingston Uptown Businessmen's Association, made the following statement while presenting the bicentennial music to the music directors:

"I want to thank you music directors of the schools and members of the Bicentennial Committee for coming. I am delighted that we could get together here at the Senate House for this occasion. The Senate House has direct historical ties to the revolution and thus to the bicentennial celebration."

"America's 200th anniversary is going to be livelier and brighter and more enjoyable thanks to you," Stampfle said.

Stampfle said that his firm was "deeply honored" by the support some 30,000 schools throughout the nation have given their program. "While our program is actually a gift for America, it only becomes meaningful when the schools of America get involved and especially your musicians," Stampfle said.

Reflecting on a gift of music, Stampfle said, "Some of you may wonder why a company like ours is supporting the bicentennial with music. Well, the reason is that we believe America is and has always been a nation of music lovers. We believe there is no better expression of all aspects of our life as a nation than the music of America and we believe that perhaps more than anywhere else the music of America lives in her schools.

"And so we offer you music for your marching band, for your orchestra, for your choral groups for your jazz ensembles and rock groups. We offer you music from America's past, music that makes us proud of our history and our heritage," Stampfle said.

"We offer you music of today, music that celebrates the modern spirit of America, music that inspires us in this bicentennial era to seek out the bright promise of America."

"That is J.C. Penney's gift to you, music for America that will help tell us what we have, what we are and what we may yet become together."

"Thank you for accepting it."

Lincoln and Eleanor Christensen admire a piece of Haitian art works in their Hurley home. For author Christensen, there is "nothing sinister" about voodoo.

Art Works Clue to Eleanor Christensen's Book

By Tobie Geertsema

HURLEY On the walls of Eleanor Christensen's old stone house in Hurley, amid paintings, drawings and other mementos, are several handsome examples of Haitian art. They dominate the walls with stunning effect, but when Eleanor and her husband, Lincoln, tell you that all that was required to create them was "a hammer, a chisel and an oil drum," they fascinate even more for their strength, beauty and originality.

And in their simple but striking beauty resides the clue as to why Eleanor Christensen has devoted the past few years to writing the first broad-ranging story of the development of Haitian art. In "The Art of Haiti," set against the violent periods of this Caribbean island's history — and illustrated with more than 70 full color and black and white plates of his own consulting firm). And while he toured woodworking shops and baseball stitching factories, Ellie delved into the Haitian art movement.

Her interest in the island's development of its art had been piqued by a magazine article she had read in a Kingston beauty parlor just before visiting Haiti. But it was to take two subsequent visits ("There is a lessening of tensions now that 'Papa Doc' is dead," she says), more than two years of research ("Much research had to be done in this country since many Haitian works are in U.S. collections," she adds), and a vast amount of correspondence before the book became a reality.

The book encompasses the entire spectrum of art in Haiti from pre-Columbian times to today. She found, sadly, that "nothing of great consequence from the pre-Columbian era is on exhibit in Haiti." Such artifacts have "been very carelessly of the Ulster County Council of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society. With musical interests taking second place to the book for more than two years, she is looking forward with enthusiasm to the Philharmonic program here next year; predicts an exciting season under five top conductors.

An art major in college, she continued fine arts studies at the Fogg Museum, Harvard University, and the Woodstock School of Art, where she found the great Judson Smith "a wonderful person to study under." Her own paintings reflect her admiration for the old masters.

If her book has a hero other than the Haitian artist-peasants now admired by world art critics, it is DeWitt Peters, descendant of the man who laid out Washington Square in New York City and an artist-teacher who inspired an artistic revolution in Haiti in the 1940s. But the book is far more than a passing salute to Peters. In its in-depth research, it stands as a factual, well-rounded reference work of Haitian art and history; has drawn the highest praise from those who are the most knowledgeable and closest to the island's art movement, including Haitian Ambassador George Salomon, who has assured her of "The moral support of the Embassy."

Now that the book has drawn such favorable reactions, Ellie Christensen is already planning two more books, both in the field of art, with the first centering on Tiffany glass.

When not busy with her research and writing, she teaches mornings at Kingston's Fair Street Nursery School, where she is taking obvious delight in the current group of youngsters. Among the ethnically-mixed students are children from Holland, Korea, France and Thailand, none of whom spoke English when they registered — and all of whom, she says, "now talk like Americans."

The Haitian art book is not her first writing effort. She has previously written stories and feature articles on the old ferry boats of the Hudson River and unusual Hudson Valley industries. And, in spite of her time-consuming interests in music, art and writing, she manages to out-golf her husband with a 20 handicap game. ("She does it effortlessly," he says with wry admiration, "while I practice, work, read and pray and only end up with a 13 handicap.") As a team, however, they are on a totally equal par when manning their 17-foot sailboat in the waters off Martha's Vineyard, Florida's Tampa Bay, and the Hudson River.

native art — she has produced an impressive and thoughtful book on her subject. What had originally been intended as an article for Reader's Digest, eventually evolved and culminated in a major work on Haitian art history, just published by A.S. Barnes and Company of South Brunswick and New York.

The Christensens first visited Haiti in 1969, when most American tourists were avoiding the island because of the despotic reputation of "Papa Doc" Duvalier and his notorious Ton Ton Macoute. They felt no fear, however, since the Tons Tons "were very well concealed" and, on only one occasion — when they approached too close to the fence of the presidential palace — were they shooed off by "men in uniforms who appeared from all directions brandishing guns." By "carefully avoiding political discussions," they found their initial visit a pleasant one.

Lin Christensen was there "looking into business possibilities" (he's a retired management engineer who once headed handled" and "scattered around the world." Gold work of that period (it was never smelted; simply hammered out) is almost non-existent, she says. But some examples survive in works used on voodoo altars as thunder stones; were put in the ethnological museum by the government when it clamped down on voodoo.

For author Christensen, there is "nothing sinister" about voodoo. While suggesting that most Americans would find it "unfamiliar and primitive," she is convinced it is a "good influence." Along with their own special Creole language, she feels, "it provides a strong and steady social network for the peasants." Much of her own personal fascination with the voodoo rites stemmed from the crude drums used. "They actually sing when you simply rub a finger over them," she says.

Ellie Christensen's interest in both music and art is strong. She has played the piano for many years; is currently president

'Ball of Spring' Set June 14 At the Blithewood Manor House

Residents in the community interested in helping the hospital and still enjoy a delightful evening may contact Mrs. John H. White of Rhinebeck for reservations and details.

Working with Mrs. Appell, general chairperson, will be:

Mrs. Alfred C. Januale and Mrs. John J. Baker, dinner; Mrs. John H. White Jr., reservations; Mrs. Louis G. Dillman, Mrs. T.M. Sypek and Mrs. Alfred C. Januale, decorations and Mrs. Walter M. Flynn, publicity.

Other committee members include:

Mrs. George Verrilli, Mrs. Donald P. McKibbin, Mrs. Joseph F. Ambrose, Mrs. Michael C. Mazzarella, Mrs. William Landauer, Mrs. Walter Schriber, Mrs. Jack Butti, Mrs. George J. Gallo, Mrs. Frederick Z. Zipser, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Michael A. Spitzer and Mrs. Robert F. Burns.

Plans are well underway for the gala "le Bal au Printemps" sponsored by the Friends of Northern Dutchess Hospital.

The "Ball of Spring" will be held for the second time at the elegant Blithewood Manor House of Bard College on Saturday, June 14.

Blithewood Manor House was the former Zabriski estate given to the college in 1951. The majority of the furnishings at the estate were donated to the college by Gore Vidal, a former owner of "Edgewater" in Barrytown.

The Manor House overlooks the beautifully enclosed formal gardens and is a perfect setting for the evening's festivities on June 14.

Mrs. Kenneth Appell and her vast array of committees are enthusiastic about this year's menu which will feature gourmet foods to be served continuously throughout the evening. Dancing will be until 2 a.m. to the tunes of the Dance Tempo Supremes.

Planning Committees for Ball

Mrs. Kenneth Appell (C), chairperson of the 1975 gala "Ball of Spring," goes over plans with two of her committee assistants, Mrs. Joseph F. Ambrose (L) and Mrs. Walter M. Flynn. This year's gala is scheduled Saturday, June 14, at the elegant Blithewood Manor House of Bard College. (Freeman photo)

Senate House Rose Garden

In celebration of the nation's Bicentennial in 1976, the Mid-Hudson Rose Society is currently carrying out plans for a Senate House Rose Garden.

Located on the Senate House property on the corner of North Front and Fair Streets, the garden will be the first public rose garden in Kingston.

Preliminary plans call for ground preparation during the fall of this year and the first plantings of roses in the Spring of 1976.

Jim Burke of Woodstock, who is project chairman for this ambitious undertaking, reports that members of the sponsoring Mid-Hudson Rose Society have made an initial test planting.

Kingston and the Senate House were selected for this garden location project because of the historical importance of the city during Revolutionary times.

The garden, when completed, will contain roses of many types including Old Garden Roses, some of which will date back to Revolutionary Days; Climbing Roses, Hybrid Teas, and Floribundas.

These will include some of the better, newer varieties including roses being introduced by American nurserymen, especially in honor of the Bicentennial celebration.

Planning for Rosendale Library Fair

Formulating plans for the annual Rosendale Library Fair, scheduled August 9 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., are Mrs. Carl J. Mihm (L), publicity chairperson; Walter G. Williams, president of Rosendale Library board of trustees, and Mrs. Peter Mathews, president of the Library Association. Rosendale Town Supervisor Richard B. Glazer, standing, checks the progress. The fair will be held on the grounds of the Rosendale Firemen's Association, Main Street, the hall being the temporary home of the library. The historic Rosendale Library was damaged by fire in January of this year. It is the hope of the fair committee that funds this year will help to defray some of the expenses due to repairs. Dear Abby:

It's Limits to a Farm Wife

By Abigail Van Buren

1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is a question that has bugged me for years. Is it improper for the wife of a dairy farmer (we've been married 19 years) to be a spectator at the breeding of farm animals?

You see, I help with practically everything else that goes with farming, and most of our dairy cattle are bred by artificial insemination (which, by the way, I am not permitted to witness.) But when the need arises for breeding with our bull, this is an absolute no-no.

My husband engages the assistance of another man to help take said cow to the bull, which is at another barn with our young heifers of breeding age. When the bull is at the dairy barn and a cow is bred, the place is shut up tighter than a drum.

In all my years of working on a farm, this part of farming has always been off-limits to me.

Your opinion and answer would be greatly appreciated.

MRS. R.T. (FARMER'S WIFE)

DEAR WIFE: As a grown woman and a partner in the family farming business, you have as much right as your husband to witness any and all aspects of farm life. And if he thinks he has the right to "protect" you by censoring what you should witness, his male chauvinism is showing.

DEAR ABBY: I am an astrology consultant, and my field seems to be most interesting to a lot of people. From day to day I get numerous letters and cards containing questions about astrology.

I am always willing to provide what information I can, gratis, even though it takes time from my work to do so. But at least these people can do is to send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, since it is to their advantage to receive this information.

Postage is quite an item these days, and it is a shame that these requests land in the waste basket for lack of a stamped envelope.

ARKANSAS STAR-GAZER

DEAR GAZER: Believe me, I understand your problem. Multiply it by a thousand, and you'll have a fairly accurate picture of mine.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the lady who did not like dirty, four-letter words and signed herself "HUNG UP":

A quotation from the Earl of Roscommon (1633-1684) might be in order here. (Roscommon is a county in Ireland.)

"Immodest words admit of no defense,

For want of decency is want of sense."

J.A.W. IN BOSTON

CONFIDENTIAL TO T.S.R. IN MILWAUKEE: You would have about as much success "turning on" a buddhist or mohammedan to the message of Christ as THEY would have turning YOU on to the message of Buddha or Mohammed.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 79600, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Party for Nearly-Weds

Welcome Wagon International recently sponsored another informative and entertaining party for Ulster County's engaged young women at the Holiday Inn in Kingston.

H. Casson, Woodstock Flower Shop, International House of Gifts, Home Decorator's Workshop, Markle's, Schneider's Jewelers, Holiday Inn, Tom Reynolds Studio and Esposito's Tux Shop.

This party was especially for fall and winter brides. A bridal and tuxedo fashion show by area merchants was the highlight of the evening.

All Ulster County betrothed young women are eligible to attend these parties with two guests of her choice at no cost or obligation.

Merchants who participated in the nearly-wed party included: Ketterer's Bakery, the Bride Shoppe, William Free tickets may be obtained for Welcome Wagon's next Nearly-Wed Party by contacting Mrs. Charlotte Crisman, hostess.

Driftwood Shifts to Weekend Slate

The Driftwood Floating Theatre has announced that it will present its current comedy hit, "What's My Number," on a weekend schedule and that the theater will remain dark during the week for the balance of this show which concludes June 15.

This move, management reports, will enable workers to update the boat's lighting equipment and install a sound system on board.

"The whole purpose of the improvements is to ready the boat for its upcoming "Country on the River" program which will present big name country and western recording stars in concert, starting in July," a spokesman said.

Steve Burke, who is producing the concert series, said that the alterations should take about two weeks and that following the work the boat will again operate on a full schedule in time for its second production, "This Thing Called Love" which opens June 17.

The repairs, according to Burke, were needed to provide the big names expected to perform on the boat with the best possible lights and sound while not detracting from the spirit of the Showboat.

The weekend program has an 8:30 o'clock show Friday and Saturday nights and the 5:30 o'clock Sunday matinee.

Tickets and reservations may be secured every day, Tuesday through Sunday, 1 to 6 p.m., by calling the Showboat office.

Paltz High: Choir and Ballet

Concert Thursday

The New Paltz High School Choir under the direction of Polly B. Pritchard will present its annual Spring Concert June 5 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

This year's concert will feature music from the pop scene and the classics. The Women's Choir will be singing selections from The Sound of Music. Also on the program will be the music from Godspell.

Featured in Godspell with the choir will be guitarist Gerry Silverman, bassist James Diven, Andy Steiner on drums, Sue Czaplinski on piano, and Mike McCarthy on organ. Other accompanists for the choir will be Terri Witz, Renee DeYoung, and Susan McCoy.

The Spring Concert is free and open to the public.

Ballet Saturday

Fred Douglass deMayo, director of the New Paltz School of Ballet, will present a student dance concert, open to the public free of charge, Saturday night, June 7, at the New Paltz High School starting at 7:30 o'clock.

"The World of Ballet" will be the theme of the dance review which will pay tribute to the many outstanding ballet companies throughout the world.

DeMayo, founder of the New Paltz Ballet, a former soloist in the National Ballet and a performing artist in the Metropolitan Opera Ballet, has prepared a dance review which will feature classical ballet and young children who have not yet performed before an audience. Six-year-old children will appear on the same program with more seasoned dancers aging from 14 to the early 20's.

Costumes for this production are being supplied by Taffy's of Cleveland and Herbets of New York. Lighting design is by Steve Price and set design by Ninety Miles. The New Paltz Ballet annual concert is a community effort and presented as a non-profit venture to promote the ballet as an art form in New Paltz.

Junior League at Conferences

The Junior League of Kingston recently sent four of its members to conferences in Colorado Springs and Washington.

Mrs. John Crews, president, and Mrs. Theodore Peck, vice-president, attended the Association of Junior Leagues' Annual Conference at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs. The theme of the conference was "Frontiers in Voluntarism," with the main focus on the relevancy of voluntarism today, its future, and how it fits into our changing society since it is currently coming under increasing attack.

An international voluntary organization, the Association is comprised of 227 autonomous Leagues representing more than 112,000 individual members. Over 650 delegates from the United States, Canada and Mexico City attended the conference.

Mrs. John Spindler and Mrs. William Dubbeling, both of Woodstock, attended Congressman Hamilton Fish's Women's Leadership Day in Washington recently. Among those who spoke to the delegates on major national and international issues were: Representative Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland, a member of the House Judiciary Committee; Ms. Hazel Rollins, Director of Consumer Affairs for the Federal Energy Administration and Representative Paul McCloskey of California.

Kingston Beats White Plains, 4-2, for 'AA' Title

WHITE PLAINS That Kingston High School baseball juggernaut just keeps rolling along.

The Maroons made it four-for-four in post-season play Monday when they dumped White Plains, 4-2, to win their best-of-three series two games to none and capture the 1975 Section One AA championship.

Combined with earlier wins over Roosevelt of Yonkers and Ketcham in the AA openers, and a Dutchess County Scholastic League title campaign, Kingston has now won 17 of its 22 games.

And in securing the AA crown, the Maroons have won two of the last three Section One AA prizes.

All of which means Kingston has more baseball left on the 1975 calendar. Just how much is still up in the air, but one thing is certain, KHS will face the winner of the Class A series, either Horace Greeley or Portchester, Thursday afternoon at a site to be determined.

Also in the future are potential games against the Section One B-C champ and the Section Nine AA-A kingpin.

The formula Monday for

KHS was as it has been for most of the season: good pitching and timely hitting. The only difference between the clincher and last Saturday's 4-0 win at Dietz was starting pitcher Gary Amato having to struggle to dispose of the Plainsmen as compared to Marco Tiano and Paul Lawatsch's relative easy route in Gaee One.

"Amato struggled," KHS coach Ron Cole agreed. "But of the seven hits he gave up only one was solid. They had two infield hits, three bunt hits, and one bloop over the infield. Anyway, he had runners on base in almost every inning.

White Plains scored an unearned run in the first when a walk and an infield hit put runners on first and third with two out. When George Casas attempted to steal second, Maroon second baseman Cliff Lyons cut off the throw but overthrew catcher Lou Eccleston and Leroy Greer scored.

KHS evened the count in the top of the fourth on another tape measure home run by Duane Carey when Paul Runge and Steve Hughes hit back-to-back doubles in the fifth, Kingston was up, 2-1.

The Plainsmen rallied to tie the game in their half of the fifth, however, as singles by Ed Leonard, Casis, and Mark Trabaking produced a run.

Amato struck out seven and walked two in going the distance. Losing pitcher Burt Lacativo fanned five and didn't allow any free passes. He yielded nine hits.

Complete Game for Matlack

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jon Matlack finally was able to finish what he started.

Matlack, hurling his first complete game in 11 starts this season, limited the Houston Astros to four hits Monday night in pitching the New York Mets to a 2-0 victory.

Not only was it the first route-going performance for the 25-year-old southpaw this year, but it was also the first shutout of 1975 for Matlack, who led the National League in that department last season with seven.

The triumph boosted Matlack's record to 7-3 and was his fifth straight victory. In his last start, Matlack had lasted until the ninth inning while in two previous appearances to that, he had to be relieved in the eighth and seventh innings, respectively.

Matlack's complete-game performance couldn't have come at a better time for the busy Mets, who were playing the fourth of 17 games scheduled for 17 days. The Mets are also in a streak that will see them play 47 games in the 45 days preceding the All-Star Game break in mid-July.

Matlack got all the support he needed from Dave Kingman, the pre-season acquisition from San Francisco who entered the game with an anemic batting average of .208.

With one out in the Mets' second, Rusty Staub beat out an infield hit before Kingman teed off on losing pitcher Dave Roberts with a triple into the leftfield corner. Kingman then scored New York's second run on Jerry Grote's sacrifice fly as Roberts was saddled with his sixth loss against three wins.

The only hits allowed by Matlack were singles to Cesar Cedeño, Greg Gross and Wilbur Howard and a double to Bob Watson in the ninth.

The Astros' best chance to score came in the fourth when Cedeño led off with his single, stole second and went to third on an infield out. He was left stranded, however, as Matlack struck out Enos Cabell and got Doug Rader on a pop to short.

McGlothen: Just Like Gibson

By UPI

The Atlanta Braves can be excused if they're questioning the news that Bob Gibson has been dropped from the St. Louis Cardinals' starting rotation.

They thought they saw Gibson out there firing Monday night when the Cardinals beat them 1-0. With good reason, too.

Lynn McGlothen is a 25-year old right-hander from Monroe, La., who is just about the same size as Gibson and has many of his mannerisms, including the fact that he wastes no time between his pitches and wants to get the game over with as fast as possible.

It took McGlothen an hour and 40 minutes to do the job Monday night when he pitched a four-hitter for his second shutout of the season and defeated the Braves. McGlothen walked two and struck out four in raising his record to 5-4.

McGlothen is a key pitcher for the Cardinals, who are looking for frontline pitching strength. He was their staff leader for almost half the 1974 season and then tailed off to finish 16-12. He was 12-3 at one point before running into two four-game losing streaks.

In any event, No. 47 looked very much like No. 45 Monday night when Ted Simmons singled home the only run of the game in the fourth inning after Ted Sizemore was safe on a forceout and losing pitcher Carl Morton walked Reggie Smith.

The Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres 5-1, the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 2-0 and the Montreal Expos won 5-3 over the Los Angeles Dodgers in other National League games.

In the American League, it was Chicago 9 Boston 2 and Milwaukee 6 Oakland 3, Phillies 5, Padres 1.

Mike Schmidt, batting .181 at gametime, drove in three runs with a single and homer as the Phillies' Steve Carlton raised his record to 5-4. Carlton pitched a five-hitter, walked four but struck out seven. Mike Anderson also homered for the Phils. Dave Freisleben suffered his sixth loss against three wins for the Padres.

Expos 5, Dodgers 3

Woody Fryman settled down after allowing Los Angeles two runs in the first inning to win his fifth game against two losses. Fryman helped his own cause with a run-scoring double in the fourth inning as the Expos handed Doug Rau his fifth loss against the same number of wins.

White Sox 9, Red Sox 2

Bucky Dent drove in two runs with late-inning singles as the White Sox broke open a close game to ease Stan Bahnsen's path to his fourth victory. Bill Lee suffered his fifth loss for the Red Sox.

Brewers 6, A's 3

George Scott hit a two-run homer and Robin Yount hit two RBI singles in the Brewers' victory over the A's. Vida Blue, whose record dropped to 9-3, Williams Castro picked up his first major league victory with 6 2-3 innings of relief.

Pele To Sign

SANTOS, Brazil (UPI) — International soccer star Pele Monday made it clear he intends to sign a multi-million dollar contract with the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League.

Pele said, "I told the New York Cosmos 'Yes,' and I have already begun to look for a house to live in while in New York."

He told reporters that he would announce Tuesday the exact date he will sign the contract reported to be worth $4.7 million for three years.

The 3-year-old uncrowned king of international soccer denied he had signed the contract during his recent stay in the United States.

He said he would ask the Cosmos to postpone his debut on American soccer fields until the June 18 match with Toronto. His original debut was scheduled for June 10.

Pele, whose real name is Edson Arantes do Nascimento, retired from professional play last year after a brilliant 17-year career with the Santos Football Club.

Spanish favorite replied. "Also, the fact he doesn't make mistakes."

NBA Awaits O'Brien's Decisions

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Everyone here connected with the National Basketball Association is waiting on new commissioner Lawrence O'Brien to see how he handles his first two decisions.

O'Brien, former Democratic National Chairman, attended his first meeting as commissioner here Monday and immediately was handed a couple of hot potatoes—and both involve the New York Knickerbockers.

Signs With Braves

Tom McMillen, a former University of Maryland star who was the Buffalo Braves' top selection in the 1974 college draft, talks to newsmen Monday after signing a multi-year contract with the National Basketball Association club. Braves' owner Paul Snyder, who like McMillen is a native of Mansfield, Pa., did not disclose the terms of the pact. (UPI)

Fan Buys Hawks

ATLANTA (UPI) — When the Atlanta Hawks first moved to town, the Simon S. Selig Jr. family bought season tickets. Each season they renewed them and kept going to Hawks' games.

The Hawks' fortunes faltered but the Seligs remained faithful. Tom Cousins, who brought the Hawks to Atlanta, said his family also attended Hawks games.

"Mr. Selig was one of the other few there with us," Cousins said.

When it appeared that the Hawks were having financial problems, Selig approached Cousins and offered to help.

Then stories appeared in the Atlanta press about the possibility of the Hawks being moved to another city. Once again Selig—who owns an Atlanta real estate firm—approached Cousins and asked if they could talk about his family buying the team. The negotiations were completed Sunday night and Monday afternoon it was announced that Selig, his wife and son, S. Stephen Selig III, 32, had signed a letter of intent to purchase the majority interest in the Hawks.

"You could say we're sports nuts," Selig said. "We're enthusiasts. We love all sports—hockey, basketball, football, baseball."

Charge and Pray Tactics

ROME (UPI) — Raul Ramirez' game plan is to charge the net and pray. Somebody up there liked him Monday.

The mustachioed Mexican, whose tennis star has climbed in the past few months, finally made up his mind to charge the net in the Italian International Tennis championships Monday and it paid off in a straight set 7-6, 7-5, 7-5 win over Spain's Manuel Orantes for his first major title.

Ramirez won the $16,000 men's single title in a rain delayed match against Orantes, the 1972 champion and a finalist at Rome in three of the past four years, after coming from behind and holding out against the Spaniard's rally.

"I usually run to the net and pray," Ramirez, who was sixth seed at Rome and is the world's 18th ranked player said. "Today it all went well."

Ramirez, who almost single handedly eliminated the United States from the 1975 Davis Cup, found himself down 1-4 in the opening set before he decided to move onto the attack.

"I was a little bit cold and uncertain whether to charge the net or stay back at the start," the Mexican, who will turn 22 in two weeks, said. "I couldn't pass Manuel from the back so I decided to move in," he said.

It meant the match.

Ramirez broke Orantes in the seventh game of the first set and then attacked the Spaniard's own serve in the eighth and ninth games of the tie break to win on a 7-3 point count.

In the second set each player put up two love games and held service to throw the set into a 5-5 deadlock. Ramirez held his own serve in the 11th and then broke Orantes in the 12th to take a two-set lead.

Ramirez began to run away with the match in the third set, taking a 3-0 lead when he made his fifth break point on an Orantes error.

But he became overcautious once again.

"At 3-0 in the third, I realized I had only three games to win to take the championship. I became overly cautious," Ramirez said.

Orantes took four of the next five games and pulled even 4-4, holding the eighth game at love. He was not beaten yet.

The Spaniard pushed Ramirez to a ninth deuce in the ninth game, failing on six break points to take the lead, until the Mexican held on a shot which hit the tape and trickled over into Orantes' court.

Again in the 11th game, with Ramirez serving, Orantes went to five deuces, only to have the Mexican once again hold his serve.

The end came in the 12th when Ramirez, sensing victory, took three championship points in hand and won the title on the first, breaking Orantes at love.

"It is difficult to be 3-0 in a final set," Ramirez ruminated later. "I again started to play carefully but Manuel was playing well and to win I had to go again to the attack."

Orantes, who was aces seven times in the match, was asked what he considered to be Ramirez' most difficult shot.

"His serve," the veteran

Stars Name Ted Harris

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Veteran National Hockey League defenseman Ted Harris will return to the Minnesota North Stars after a two-year absence to take over as coach, club officials announced Monday.

Harris ended a 16-year career on the ice last week, retiring from Philadelphia after the Flyers recaptured the Stanley Cup.

He will succeed Charlie Burns, who took over in the middle of the North Stars' disastrous 1974-75 season when they failed to make it into the playoffs for the second straight year. Burns will remain with Minnesota as chief assistant to General Manager Jack Gordon.

Trevino and Haynie Set Golf Day Target Scores
AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Lee Trevino fired a four-under-par 66 on the famed South Course at Firestone Country Club and Sandra Haynie had a 74 to set the target scores for amateur golfers to shoot at in the annual National Golf Day here Monday.

Trevino, who at one time considered the course a jinx, now feels differently.

"This 66 gives me a lot of confidence," said Trevino, "I only missed the fairway once — by just three inches and that's because they forgot to mow the grass there."

Feller a Winner ... Even Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Feller lives in the present, not the past, but there are times, mostly when he's by himself, he allows himself to daydream a bit. He catches himself wondering how he'd do against the modern day hitters, and in these private little reveries of his, he always comes out on top.

This is understandable enough when you've been in the Hall of Fame almost 15 years the way Bob Feller has, when you've posted 266 lifetime victories the way he also has, and when you still hold the major league record for one-hitters with 12.

Remarkably, Feller went after his 13th one-hitter this past Sunday. More remarkably yet, he got it, and most remarkable of all, perhaps, is that at 56, the former Cleveland fireballer is no kid anymore and you'd hardly expect him to be out there pitching anymore, but he still can get the ball up there.

He looks younger than 56, possibly because he has taken to darkening his hair, bringing it back to his original color, he says, with a product he's promoting, Grecian Formula 16. Maybe it makes him feel younger as well because for the first time in a long time Sunday he put on a uniform in San Antonio. He pitched three innings of an Old-Timers' game before the regularly scheduled Lafayette-San Antonio contest and allowed only one hit.

Feller was sitting around in the press room of the ball park after he finished when San Antonio's assistant business manager walked in with a startling piece of news. "Ryan has pitched another no-hitter!" he announced.

The statement had a special impact upon Feller because for many years he shared the major league record for most no-hitters with three. Sandy Koufax broke that record 10 years ago and now here was Nolan Ryan coming along to pass Feller and move up alongside Koufax with his fourth no-hitter in three years for the California Angels.

What was Feller's first reaction? The same as Koufax. "My first thought was that sooner or later Ryan will break the record," Feller said. "My second thought was oh, well, I still got the one-hit record." Feller laughed.

"I'm only kidding," he said.

Some feel Nolan Ryan may be the fastest pitcher in baseball history. His fastball was clocked at 100.8 miles per hour last summer wiping out Feller's unofficial record of 98.6 which had stood nearly three decades.

Feller doesn't put complete stock in those figures. It's clear he isn't convinced Ryan throws any harder than he did.

"I wish they had checked the speed of his pitch when the ball crossed home plate the way they did mine," he said. "On his test, Ryan threw into a wide open electronic 'field.' I had to throw into a much smaller area. Look, I'm not saying who's faster. Maybe he is. All I know is he just won his 100th game Sunday, and he's 28. I won my 100th game when I was 22."

That sounded like a little like sour grapes, and I told that to Feller, but he had the perfect answer.

"Look, those are the facts," he said. "They're right there in the record book. I didn't put 'em in there. What I mean is, I didn't take the record book and stick 'em in. They're in there because they're facts. As old Al Smith used to say, 'let's look at the record.'"

If you press Bob Feller as I did because I know him for so many years, and ask him point blank whether he feels in his heart he feels he threw harder than Nolan Ryan does, his answer is yes. That's to be expected. It's human nature.

Lefty Grove felt he was the fastest, and somewhere deep down inside where nobody can see, Herb Score, Sandy Koufax and Sam McDowell probably feel they were the quickest. So why should Bob Feller be exempt from feeling he threw the ball harder than anyone else?

"Walter Johnson thought the same thing," Feller said. "I remember a newspaperman interviewing him about me in Washington. Johnson said, 'no doubt about it, he can throw the ball, but I think I had a little edge on him.'"

Feller pitched for the Indians until he was 38, winning 22 games when he was 33. He feels Ryan will start losing a little bit off his fast ball the closer he gets to 30.

"That's only natural and it happens to everybody," said Feller. "He'll begin going to his curve ball and change-up more. That happens to everybody, too."

Frustrating Day for Amateurs

HOYLAKE, England (UPI) — Neither rain nor hail, nor gale force winds kept British amateur golfing championship contenders from their appointed first round.

But the 50 mile per hour winds, blowing hail and sleet showers in from the Irish Sea played havoc with the frustrated golfers in the opening round Monday.

"It's the worst weather I have ever played in," said Walker Cup golfer Craig Stadler of La Jolla, Calif.

The wind blew the putter clean out of my hand, and several times I saw putts coming back to me."

The second round of the six-day match play championship was scheduled to get underway today with seeded players Jerry Pate of Pensacola, Fla., Richard Siderow of Westport, Conn., and Briton G.R.D. Eyles getting into the fray for the first time at midmorning.

Stadler halved the third hole in eight strokes on his way to a 5-3 victory over Englishman David Mackintosh.

A vicious combination of bitterly cold winds, giant hail showers and sleet storms ravaged the Royal Liverpool links, flattening scoreboards and overturning a concession stand.

Despite conditions akin to an Arctic survival test, only one of the top ranked Americans was washed out.

Bill Campbell, the 52-year-old grandfather from Huntington, W. Va. who never lost a Walker Cup singles match, went down by one hole to David Steel, a 19-year-old Englishman.

Campbell, who only last week played a key role in helping the United States retain the Walker Cup, got off to a bad start, taking seven strokes on the first hole. He was one up going into the 17th but ran into trouble in the bunkers and Steele won the final two holes.

Rotron Edges Terri's

KINGSTON — Bob Sleight's infield single in the bottom of the seventh drove in Bob Hand with the winning run as Rotron edged Terri's 5-4, in City Slo Pitch C Division action Monday night at Block Park.

In other games, LaLima's ripped Delaware 10-4, Potter Bros. got by Polacco's 7-5, Amato's Trucking topped Pier Seven Giants, 6-4, and Nagasaki A Bomb upended Gov. Clinton Cleaners, 14-7.

Don Beesmer had driven in the tying run for Terri's with a single in the top of the seventh against Rotron, but Sleight's hit put the game on ice. Harry Phillips homered for Terri's.

Joe Koenig homered and Joe Bodie drove in four runs as LaLima's downed Delaware 10-4. Bodie had a double and a triple.

Bill Cragen's seventh inning triple brought in the winning run as Potter Bros. defeated Polacco's. Jim Gualtieri doubled and homered in a losing cause.

A two-run single by Steve Longendyke broke a 4-4 tie and gave Amato's its victory over Pier Seven Giants.

Don Every had four hits and drove in five runs as Nagasaki trounced Gov. Clinton. A six-run seventh carried the Bombers to the easy win. Chris Cahill homered for Nagasaki.

BRL Opener: Foust Fans 15

KINGSTON — Jay Foust struck out 15 and scattered four hits as Turk Construction topped the Kingston Lions, 8-3, in a Kingston Junior Babe Ruth League baseball opener Monday evening at Dietz Stadium.

In the other game, the Knights of Columbus trounced KPA, 19-1, in a game called after five innings.

Mike Mercier, Jay Foust, and Tony Grimaldi each had two hits as Turk broke open a tie game with a run in the third, four in the fifth, and one in the sixth.

Bill Merecka absorbed the defeat for the Lions.

The Knights pounded 12 hits while Ron Diers was striking out 12 and holding KPA to just one in the five inning rout. An 11-run fifth settled the issue.

John Malville, Ed Kaufman, and Woody Peoples were the big hitters for K of C, each with two safeties. One of Kaufman's hits was a triple.

Rick Smith had KPA's only hit, a double. Tom Rundle was the losing pitcher.

The box scores:

Pier 7, Celtics Win

KINGSTON — Lee North's single drove in Pam Thomas from third base to cap a three-run seventh inning and give Pier Seven Sports a 7-6 win over Kingston Hospital in a Women's City Softball League A Division game Monday evening.

In another opener, the Celtics scored four runs in the ninth to beat AAA Auto Glass, 13-10.

Thomas had two singles, a double, and a triple to lead the Pier Seven attack. Debbie Swanson and Georgette Dunn also doubled as did Ellen Miller for the Hospital.

Carol Countryman's two-run double in the ninth was the big blow as the Celtics beat AAA. The winners took a 9-2 lead after one inning, lost it as AAA chipped away, and finally pulled it out at the end.

A home run by Georgette Gantner had tied the game in the seventh, sending it to extra innings. Nancy Pavlak and Ann Schroeder homered for the Celtics. Schroeder and Gantner each drove in five runs while Countryman and Joan Viscosi each had four hits.

Already Spending

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Darryl Dawkins, who Saturday became a professional basketball-playing millionaire at 18, has already found two places to spend his money — the local car dealership and the real estate agency.

Dawkins, the 6-foot-10 Maynard Evans High School star who signed a seven-year contract with the Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association Saturday for reportedly more than $1 million, bought two luxury automobiles Monday and began to arrange the purchase of a home for his mother.

Dawkins also reportedly met with officials of a local bank to make arrangements with them to handle his finances.

More Fun to Watch

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Carol Mann, president of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, said Monday women's golf is more fun to watch than men's and does not need any gimmicks to draw crowds.

Feller pitched for the Indians until he was 38, winning 22 games when he was 33. He feels Ryan will start losing a little bit off his fast ball the closer he gets to 30.

St. Peter's, Rosendale, CYO Track Champs

KINGSTON St. Peter's of Rosendale captured seven first places and a relay to rack up 83 points to win the Annual Father Herdegen Memorial Track Meet boys championship. St.

Mary's of Kingston was runner-up with 65 points. Sean Halligan, a Tyro, paced the St. Peter's squad with firsts in the broad jump, 50 yard dash and ran the second leg of the winning relay team.

Gene Sottile of St. Joseph's registered a triple by winning the Jayvee high jump, 200 yard run and 75 yard dash. The other triple winner was John Loughlin of St. Mary's who paced the Jayvee shotput and 75 yard low hurdles and ran the second leg of the relay.

More than 150 elementary school age boys from around the county participated. The meet attracted several hundred spectators despite blistering temperatures.

Donald J. Kiernan, the Ulster County CYO Athletic Chairman, was the meet director, assisted by CYO County Director Leo A. Schupp, who presented the team trophies and individual medals.

president of the Women's Division by the NJCAA Executive Committee at its recently completed meeting in Grand Junction, Colorado. Sandra Sheedy of Fulton-Montgomery CC, Johnstown, N.Y., was elected a delegate-at-large.

Starting in 1976, the 21 regional winners will all appear in the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) national championship basketball tournament at Hutchinson, Kansas. In previous years, the tournament was staged with 16 teams. This necessitated five inter-regional playoffs which were a source of constant irritation among the 563 member colleges of the NJCAA. The tournament will now be conducted over a six-day period, Monday through Saturday, and will feature a 35-game schedule. First round pairings have already been assigned: Region 14 vs. 5; Region 18 vs. 4; Region 1 vs. 15; Region 12 vs. 20; Region 17 vs. Region 19 vs. 10. . . . The NJCAA has also announced that Lea Plarski of Florissant Valley Community College in St. Louis has been named vice

Van Wageningen In Final Round

WOODSTOCK

Give Jack Lee a half dozen strokes in match play and he can give you a lot of trouble, as Woodstock Country Club regulars know. Take Ross Van Wageningen, for example. He's one of the club's best players, a 4-handicapper, but he had to rally to win the last two holes of the match, then fashion a par-4 on the first extra hole to edge Lee, one up to gain the finals of the Allen Waterous Memorial Tournament.

Van Wageningen will meet the winner of the Karl Neumann Dick Hajec match.

Lee used all of his six handicap strokes to lead Van Wageningen one-up at the turn and by two holes with two left to play, then bogeyed the 17th and 18th, where Van Wageningen got down in pars to square the match.

Van Wageningen fashioned a one over par 35-36-71 in the regulation round to Lee's 39-40-79. The winner advanced to the finals by scoring earlier victories over Ken Harder, 4 and 3; Grant Wilson, 2 and 1 and Robert Powers, 6 and 5.

Lee eliminated Ed (A to Z) Argulewicz, 4 and 3; Max Hauser, 2 up; and Grant, 1-up.

Doggie's Barkers at 3-0

SAUGERTIES

Doggie's Barkers downed Buono Funeral Home, 9-4, and routed Greco Motors, 20-1, behind Mouse Wolven's 3-hit pitching. Wolven pitched both wins. In the other game, A. J. Construction remained unbeaten (2-0) with a 12-8 decision over Mt. View Tack Shop. Doggie's are 3-0.

In the four-inning stopper, the Barkers led one short of the league record when they exploded for a 16-run rally in the opening frame. Mike Derrenbacher featured against Buono's with three singles and four ribbies. The Morticians' John Bach knocked in two runs with a pair of singles. John Tremper led the attack against Greco's with two doubles and a homer for four RBIs. Shorty Amato knocked in five runs on a double and three RBIs.

The A.J.-Mt. View contest saw a league first when the first father-son combination ever hit home runs in the same game. Sal Misasi Jr. cleared the fence for A.J.'s and his father followed with two round trippers, his third and fourth of the season. Bob Campbell added two singles and a double.

Fabbie Claims Koenig 'Buying' The Election

KINGSTON
Frank Fabbie, Republican county vice-chairman for the City of Kingston, today blasted Mayor Francis R. Koenig for what Fabbie charged was an attempt to buy this fall's election with borrowed taxpayers' money. "The Common Council tonight will be called on to vote on a $150,000 bond issue to repair Kingston streets," said the Republican leader. "This is nothing less than an attempt to buy the mayoralty election this fall," said Fabbie. "There has been no emergency in the streets program that could not have been anticipated in December when the current city budget was presented by the Mayor."

"Nor has any emergency arisen since the twelve to one Democratic Common Council passed the budget four months

Root

Word has been received of the death of Katherine Louise Payne Wells Root, former resident of Kingston and Hurley, at Daytona Beach Shores, Fla., May 10. Born in Candor, June 13, 1908, she had lived in the Kingston area for 44 years and was active in many community affairs especially with the Twentieth Century Club and the Old Dutch Church. Her first husband, DeWitt F. Wells who died in 1961 had taught in the Kingston Schools for many years and was on the faculty at Myron J. Michael School when he retired in 1950. Mrs. Root was married to Dr. Viotti E. Root in 1972 and had resided on Orchard Street, Hurley, until July, 1974. In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons: Dr. Rodney E. Wells of DeWitt, Gerald D. Wells of Louisville, Ky.; a daughter, Mrs. Jean Wells Struble of Munich, Germany; and nine grandchildren. The funeral took place May 15 from the Allen Funeral Home, Candor. Memorials may be sent to the International Association for Cancer Victims and Friends, Box 6387, Orlando, Fla., 32803.

ago," continued Fabbie. "The truth of the matter is the Democrats didn't want to raise taxes in this election year so they decided to float another one of Koenig's infamous bond issues."

"A big street building program financed with bonds is designed to create the impression that the Mayor is getting things done without it being reflected in this year's tax rate," the Republican spokesman said.

"Even the timing is designed to have the program continue right up to Election Day. By the time the bonds are sold and work ready to commence, we'll be far into the summer," Fabbie went on.

"Every year Kingston has a street building program. This year the Mayor budgeted $49,000 on streets and now seeks another $150,000 through borrowing," said Fabbie.

"Of course, the money has to be paid back but not this election year and of course it will be with high interest," he said. "Regular annual appropriations that are funded through borrowing are fiscally deceitful and can only be politically motivated."

"Although tonight's proposal has something for every ward in this election year, and will be politically difficult to resist, I call upon each Alderman to return fiscal responsibility to City Hall by rejecting Mayor Koenig's bond request," concluded Fabbie.

Nelson Dead, 68

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ozzie Nelson, who starred with his wife Harriet for 22 years on radio and television after he gained fame as an orchestra leader in the big band era, died at his home today of cancer.

Nelson, 68, had undergone a series of tests more than a year ago, then underwent surgery eight months ago when the malignancy was discovered. He took a turn for the worse a month ago and had been confined to his home since that time.

Streakers In Sneakers

KINGSTON
Allegedly clad only in sneakers, three city youths who "streaked" from O'Reilly Street to Abel Street Monday afternoon were arrested by city police on disorderly conduct charges.

Arrested were Peter J. Gewant, 17, of 138 Arnold Drive; Michael Mine, 17, of 11 Spring Lake Drive, and Daniel F. Mahoney, 18, of 37 Hoffman Street.

TO MY PATIENTS

The New York State Legislature has passed an inadequate medical Malpractice Bill. This bill was created by lawyers to give the public the impression that the Doctors' medical liability problems have been resolved. The law makers were very careful to delete most of the key elements suggested by the New York State Medical Society which would have contributed to reducing abuses of the present system.

On a long term view, I do not see how we, as community Doctors, can subject our patients to the constantly accelerating costs of this presently inadequate system. Therefore, effective June 30, 1975, if the current malpractice insurance problem is unresolved I will not be able to provide you with medical care and treatment.

Until a solution is reached in this matter, the Ulster County Medical Society, with the cooperation of other persons and agencies involved in health care delivery, will provide procedures to be followed by all individuals who need medical care. Further information on these procedures will be forthcoming through this office and through your local newspapers and radio stations.

Your Astrograph

For Wednesday, June 4, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Be persistent today on issues important to YOU. It may appear you won't succeed, but you will if you hang in there.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Don't judge others in advance of their actions today. You could be doing them an injustice. Give them the benefit of the doubt.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
This should be a pleasurable day, but there's a little warning about how much you should pay for your fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Be careful if you buy something that's new for you, but has been used by someone else. It could be faulty goods.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Your authority will be challenged regarding something you're managing. The results will vindicate your methods.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You tend to be very positive about certain things, equally pessimistic about others. Don't spoil your day with needless worry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Follow your instincts today in handling a business situation rather than the advice of one who doesn't have all the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Have faith in your judgment. Try not to be overly influenced by one who always thinks she's right. Today she isn't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
For most-productive results, temporarily set aside work that's too time-consuming. Tackle chores you can knock off quickly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Don't make decisions on your own today on a major domestic matter your mate should have a hand in deciding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You have a tendency today to skirt issues without truly saying what you think. Be frank, though it may sting the listener a bit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Your material prospects are promising today if you're prudent in your dealings. Conduct your affairs along practical lines.

Your Birthday

June 4, 1975

You will become involved in a bold enterprise this year with rather large stakes. You'll be in close association with persons who have influence over organizations and groups.

Lancelot Attacks Hand Boldly

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Lancelot the peerless looked over dummy with distaste. Dinadan, the worst player at the square table, raised Lancelot every time he could. But the peerless one wished that Dinadan had just a wee bit more. Then Lancelot went after the hand like he would go after a dragon or giant. He led a club toward dummy and went up with the king after West played low. The king held and the first dragon had been taken care of.

Next came the queen of spades finesse. Lancelot wanted to take it some time or other and this just might be his only chance.

The queen held and the second dragon had bit the dust. He led the jack of spades, covered with the ace, ruffed a spade in dummy and led a trump.

It was equally simple for Lancelot to go right up with his ace. He wanted to be able to ruff his last spade in dummy and a closing finesse might make that impossible.

The ace dropped the king, but that was frosting on the cake. It just gave Lancelot an overtrick.

Israel Starts Pullback From Sinai Peninsula

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel has ordered a pullback of troops, tanks, and artillery in the Sinai peninsula to ease Middle East tension and smooth Egypt's reopening of the Suez Canal.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat said the gesture was a step in the right direction but not enough to convince Egypt to allow Israeli cargo through the canal as Israel had hoped.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin announced the withdrawal of half the Israeli front line troops and supporting hardware Monday and said he hoped it will be completed by Thursday, the day Egypt is scheduled to reopen the Suez Canal, closed in the 1967 Middle East war.

Rabin said he hoped Egypt will reciprocate by allowing Israeli-bound cargo through the canal.

Sadat, however, said in an interview with the American Broadcasting Company in Salzburg, Austria that the pullback was "not sufficient" to let Israeli cargo through the canal.

But he left the door open by saying, "If the conduct of Israel is continuing to be like it started today, there will be no problem in this. The cargo problem is not a problem at all for me."

Rabin said Israel is pulling back half its 7,000 soldiers closest to the canal, all 36 cannons, half of the 30 tanks and all missiles except antitank missiles.

"Israel hopes the results will convince Egypt that Israel really wants and intends peace in the area and hopes to advance toward it on a general basis or by interim agreement," he said.

The pullback area, stretching from 13 to 25 miles east of the canal, is already lightly defended as a result of the thinning-of-forces agreement signed by Israel and Egypt in January of 1974.

Rabin said the withdrawal was "intended to contribute to the easing of military tension in the Middle East," but added, "This step must not take the place of political endeavors towards a solution between Israel and Egypt."

Reserve Maj. Gen. Chaim Herzog, former head of military intelligence and a leading military commentator, said he did not think the move had military significance.

"Israel's military posture in the area is not predicated on the forces held in the front line under the disengagement agreement but on something far more substantial, in the rearward areas where forces may be kept," he said.

Can Ford Run With The Ball?

SALZBURG, Austria (UPI) — President Ford has grabbed the ball in the Middle East. But can he run with it?

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat thinks so. Sadat seems to be betting that Ford will be able to push for a final solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict which has eluded other mediators in the past.

Sadat called Ford, whom he met personally for the first time, a "peace-lover" and "peace-struggler."

For Ford, who has been oriented to domestic affairs throughout his political career, such an initiation into foreign policy can be heady.

Ford believes that peace can be pragmatic and real. He has been talking in terms of a final peace settlement and even of presenting at the end of the month or in early July a Ford "peace plan."

If he wants his own imprint on America's foreign policy, the Middle East represents a golden opportunity.

Up to now, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been identified with the peace initiatives in the cradle of civilization. Flying between Tel

Aviv and Cairo, he concentrated his search for peace on a step-by-step approach, in hopes of getting each side to give a little more at each stage.

Analysis

Shuttle diplomacy collapsed last March when Kissinger failed to nudge both sides into that final compromise which would have spelled success.

Kissinger, however, clearly believes the most promising road to peace is through concessions on both sides over a long process, and has not pushed for an immediate overall settlement.

Now it appears that time is running out for Kissinger to sell an interim agreement, which will be satisfactory stop-gap, although he still plans to try.

Ford, in talks with Sadat, apparently unveiled his own proposals for a just and equitable peace in the Middle East, and next week will show them to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Washington. Clearly Ford won Sadat to his corner in terms of establishing trust. In his toast Monday Sadat observed that Ford has "great vision, compassion and a genuine commitment to peace."

Both Presidents agreed that the situation is explosive and can only be subdued when there is a genuine momentum of peace.

There were unconfirmed reports that Ford actually had a map in mind that would reflect the Arab and Israeli borders mainly on the basis of pre-1967 lines, with some modifications.

Ford will bend over backwards not to appear to be imposing a peace formula on the independent nations. However, both sides are looking to the United States for leadership in getting new talks started.

At the meeting between Ford and Sadat in Salzburg, the Soviet Union was not mentioned. Egypt has been pulling away from Russia and has been moving closer to the United States to assist in bailing it out on the economic and political fronts.

With both sides in the conflict becoming increasingly dependent on the United States, Ford now has a chance to exercise a powerful role in promoting peace.

He has kept Israel's bid for new arms aid in abeyance while he assesses United States policy in the Middle East. He apparently has held back in giving Egypt the total support it is seeking for Israeli withdrawal from its territories.

Millions Still Out of Work

By UPI

The recession may be over for business but it is of little comfort to 25 to 35 million Americans who will suffer loss of jobs or income this year, a labor economist said Monday.

"We are happy to see any signs that the economy may be turning up," said Mark Roberts, chief economist for the AFL-CIO. "But what's good for business in the short term may take a long time to translate itself into more jobs for unemployed workers."

In fact, he said, "we expect the number of unemployed workers to be rising and going higher."

"The number of people who are affected in terms of jobs and incomes even in an upturn is going to be three or four times the number of persons unemployed. If you look at 1975, it's not just 8 million out of work. There are going to be 25 to 35 million who experience some period of unemployment."

"It's a helluva lot of people. And it means they are going to be suffering a human psychological trauma quite apart from the real financial loss."

A decrease in unemployment lags behind the start of a business recovery by several months because employers are slow to rehire workers after business picks up and because of growth in the labor supply.

Economist Eliot Janeway urged the United States to end a "stickup by the oil mafia" by quadrupling prices of arms sold to Middle East states.

"They need our arms against each other and against their own folks at home," Janeway told the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers Association Monday in Toronto. Janeway said the entire world economy depended on U.S. ability to regain bargaining power in the world oil market.

"If the United States fails to do this fast enough, there is going to be a world depression," he said.

Roberts said that to make any real cut into high unemployment "we would have to have a pickup in economic activity at a rate of 7 or 8 percent or more. So we don't draw any great comfort from the upturn in indicators in terms of people being put back to work."

In the latest signs of an upturn, the Commerce Department said new orders for factory orders rose 6.4 percent in April, the biggest gain in 21 years. During the same period, businesses cut inventories by 0.8 percent, the sharpest reduction since 17 years.

In addition, Commerce said, construction spending rose 0.6 percent in April. But what was originally reported as a gain of 4.7 percent in March was revised to show a decline of 0.2 percent.

Citing the latest indicators, Alan Greenspan, chairman of President Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, told Congress "the recession's forces are spent."

National Funeral Planned for Sato

TOKYO (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, who helped turn Japan into a major economic power during his record rule of nearly eight years, will be given a national funeral later this month, officials said today.

The 74-year-old statesman and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize died Monday of heart failure resulting from a stroke he suffered two weeks ago in a geisha restaurant. He never regained consciousness.

Prime Minister Takeo Miki and his ruling Liberal Democratic Party decided today to hold a national funeral, a step below a state funeral, in Tokyo this month.

The official date will be set after consultation between government officials and Sato's family.

If you are not participating in a retirement plan, now you can set aside up to $1,500 a year in an Ulster Savings Account Retirement Plan. The U.S.-A Plan enables you to put money in a savings account or certificate and deduct that amount from your income for tax purposes. The account and its interest are non-taxable until after your retirement — when your tax obligations will probably be much lower.

If you start a U.S.-A Plan at age 30, putting aside $1,500 a year, by age 65 your retirement fund would have grown to $316,089 at current top rate.

Come in, Phone, or send the coupon below for complete information about the Ulster Savings Account Retirement Plan — ask for the U.S.-A Plan.
